NLRB HIT BY HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(UP)—The National Labor Relations Board today was rebuffed by the Supreme Court for the second time within two weeks.

The court today declined to consider a labor board appeal from a fifth circuit court of appeals decision setting aside a board order handed down in a maritime labor controversy.

Like the Consolidated Edison case last week in which the court set aside a portion of a board order, today's case involved a controversy between Congress of Industrial Organizations and American Federation of Labor affiliates.

Turn Down Plea

Today's rebuff to the board was not through the medium of a formal opinion as in the Consolidated Edison case. The court merely noted in its formal order list that it had declined to hear the board's appeal in a case involving the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Co. No reason for the denial was noted.

The lower court set aside the board order on grounds it was not supported by sufficient evidence. The board has ordered reinstatement of members of the National Maritime Union, a CIO affiliate, who were replaced on two P. &amp; O. vessels, the Florida and the Cuba, by members of the International Seamen's Union, A. F. L., with which the line had a contract. The discharges took place after a brief sitdown strike which occurred after crew members who had belonged to the A. F. L. union shifted their affiliation to the C. I. O. union.

Uphold Company

The company contended the discharges were ordered in fear of future labor difficulties and this contention was upheld by the circuit court.

The Consolidated Edison case, in which the board last week suffered its first setback in a formal court opinion, concerned a dispute between the A.F.L. International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and a competing C.I.O. union. The labor board action came at a brief court decision day at which:

Chief Justice Hughes in an opinion which brought dissent by Justices McReynolds and Butler ruled that Missouri university must admit a negro student to its law school facilities are provided at Lincoln university, the state's higher education institution for negroes.

Olson Sponsors
Jitterbug Party

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 12.—(UP)—Jitterbugs all over California pricked up their ears today when it was announced that Gov. elect Culbert Olson's free inaugural barbecue and carnival at the state fair grounds Jan. 7 will feature four dance bands and a jitterbug contest.

The barbecue is being held after the inauguration and formal inaugural ball on behalf of the "common people" of the state. More than 100,000 persons are expected and the program will include a "Find Ferdinand the Bull" contest, dancing contest for waiters above 55 years of age, entertainment by movie stars, and free dancing all day.

Edward Romero, famous chef from Los Angeles, will require 10 cooks to handle the barbecue details. Some idea of the magnitude of the feast is seen in the list of food, which includes 50,000 pounds of dressed steak, 10,000 pounds of beans, 4,000 gallons of barbecue sauce, 100,000 French rolls and 25,000 gallons of coffee.

SHIP RUNS AGROUND

MANILA, Dec. 12.—(UP)—The Motorship Danmark went aground on the Tubataba reefs in the Sulu sea at the southern end of the Philippine Archipelago today, Globe Wireless reported.

Globe intercepted an SOS from the stricken vessel. Later the ship's captain reported the Danmark was not in immediate danger. He did not indicate whether the ship was badly damaged.

Several ships in the area answered the distress calls.

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF "ARCH SWINDLER, LIAR" GASTON MEANS

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 12.—(UP)—Gaston B. Means, arch swindler, master liar, and gifted detective, died early today. He died a prisoner of the government, serving time for defrauding Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, wealthy owner of the Hope diamond, of $104,000.

He was 57 years old and his giant's frame had been withered by an illness extending over several years. He was brought here from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, a week ago for a gall bladder operation. He succumbed to a heart attack. In his prime, he weighed 280 pounds and very little of it was fat.

Means' career was one of the oddest and most spectacular of his generation. He had been indicted for such crimes as murder, espionage, forgery, bribery, larceny, embezzlement, violations of the national prohibition act, conspiracy and was a self-confessed master crook. But he was convicted only twice.

His death caused immediate speculation as to the whereabouts of some of his ill-gotten gains for he was known to have swindled an assortment of victims out of hundreds of thousands of dollars. None or very little of it was ever recovered, and, as he usually lived on a modest scale, many believed that somewhere the wily confidence man had a fortune cached.

Lost Thousands
Mrs. McKean never received any of her $104,000. A wealthy Washington, D.C., newspaper owner and society woman, she was deeply touched by the kidnapping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. Means went to her with a story of being in touch with the kidnappers who were willing to surrender the baby to him for $100,000. She gave him the money plus $4000 for expenses and he conducted a party to Alken, S. C., for the payoff. The kidnappers, of course, didn't appear and he sent Mrs. McKean on a wild goose chase to El Paso. Then he asked her for $35,000 and

Nab Suspect In Murder Case

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Kenneth Brown, 53-year-old cocktail bar handy-man, was arrested today and booked on suspicion of murder for his asserted fatal knife attack upon Cecil McMinn, 40, film studio worker and former pugilist, during a friendly scuffle between two men last night in a bar.

Witnesses said McMinn and Stafford Wallace were drinking and laughing at the bar and engaged in a friendly scuffle. Brown, apparently thinking McMinn was attempting to harm Wallace, intervened, stabbing McMinn in the side with a long knife, and then fled.

NAMED TO OFFICE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 12.—(UP)—Richard E. Collins, chairman of the state board of equalization, today announced the appointment of Louis C. Phillips as chief liquor control officer of the ninth district, comprising Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Lake, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, and Marin counties.

Phillips will have headquarters in Yuba Rosa and succeeds the late Ed Hunter. He has been a federal alcoholic tax agent since 1923 and was appointed from the civil service eligible list.

DUCE MAKES NEW DEMAND

ROME, Dec. 12.—(UP)—A second point was added to the unofficial Italian demands against France today when the authoritative Giornale D'Italia declared that the status of the French port of Djibouti—gateway to Italian Ethiopia—must be re-examined.

Previously, the newspaper, which usually speaks for Premier Benito Mussolini, had demanded an Italian share in control of the Suez canal.

The concrete Italian demands against France began to take form after a series of spectacular demonstrations for annexation of French Tunisia and Corsica, which had been viewed in some quarters as a forerunner to lesser demands which Italy expected to make as necessary to a new friendship accord.

"Silent War"

Virginia Gayda, who previously indicated that breakup of French control of the Suez Canal Company was one of these lesser demands, wrote in the Giornale D'Italia today that Djibouti had "always been an active center of silent but constant war against Italy."

Djibouti is the French port on the Red Sea which is essential to Italian commerce with Ethiopia, as to a lesser extent is the French owned railroad from Djibouti to Addis Ababa.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(UP)—George Burns, who started his theatrical career as a 12-year-old singer in a poorly paid boys' quartet and achieved fame and fortune as the "straight" member of the Burns and Allen comedy team, pleaded guilty in federal court today to nine counts charging smuggling $4,885 worth of diamond studded jewelry.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(UP)—George Burns, famous stage, radio and screen comedian and member of the team of Burns and Allen, pleaded guilty to smuggling in federal court today a few moments after he was named in a sealed indictment returned by a federal grand jury.

The maximum sentence on the charges listed against Burns in two indictments returned by the Grand jury last week is 18 years in prison.

Downey Urges Pension Scheme

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Sheridan Downey, D. Calif., today demanded that the federal government set up an old age pension system providing $60 a month, and advocated wide reforms in the monetary system to "insure permanent prosperity."

He declared that the old age pension question was one of the most important before the country "because it ties into the program for bringing back national prosperity." He proposed that the government adopt a "modified Townsend plan along the lines of the so-called general welfare bill" which was bottled up last session in the house ways and mean committee.

Downey, who ran with support of a "330 every Thursday ham and eggs" group, in California advocated that the government levy a two per cent business transactions tax to raise $5,000,000,000 or more per year for distribution to some 9,000,000 persons over 60 years of age who are not gainfully employed.

ATTORNEY RAPS PROSECUTION IN DILLINGER MURDER CASE

Charging that the prosecution officials had deliberately induced Charles Calhoun to make a statement to suit them, regarding the killing of Clyde Dillinger last June, Defense Attorney N. D. Meyer today told the jury at Calhoun's murder trial that the "poor witless fellow" actually knew nothing of the slaying he had committed.

Meyer, pleading for Calhoun's life as the trial neared its close, reiterated his contention that Calhoun was unconscious when he stood within the bathroom of a house at Midway City and fired a rifle through a window at Dillinger, who was in the rear yard.

Pointing out that allensists at the trial had testified emotional disturbance or nervous breakdown would blot out consciousness, the defense lawyer declared that had happened to Calhoun, who "certainly had enough load on his mind" to suffer such a lapse, because of asserted wrong at Dillinger's hands.

Argentina Joins American
Nations In Defense Move*New Deficit
In Prospect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's 1940 budget estimates were expected today to call for expenditures of $8,000,000,000 or more in the next fiscal year and to assure another large treasury deficit.

The budget message will be submitted to the new congress during the first week of January, probably Jan. 1, the day after congress meets.

Budget plans are carefully kept secret until estimates are read before congress. But upon the basis of know administration plans it does not now appear possible that Mr. Roosevelt will be able to bring government costs in the next fiscal year low enough to justify hope for an early budget balance.

Huge Deficit

The current fiscal year is budgeted for revenue of $5,000,270,000, expenditure of $3,985,157,600 and a net deficit of approximately $1,015,112,400. Fiscal years begin annually on July 1 so that there remain almost seven months of the current period.

In the first five months and eight days of this fiscal year the deficit has increased daily by an average of almost $10,000,000 and from Congressional Republicans and Democrats there is a rising chorus of protest and criticism.

There is no substantial prospect, however, that congressional criticism will be translated into affirmative action to reduce government expenditures sufficiently to

PRIEST EMBROILED IN RACIAL DISPUTE

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(UP)—A new controversy centered today around the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin on the matter of religious and racial tolerance.

George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, formally dissociated the Catholic church from Coughlin's radio utterances. Frank J. Hogan, president of the American Bar association, denied Coughlin's assertion that he had been "the engaged spokesman" of the National Jewish Council when he spoke for religious and racial tolerance on the radio yesterday afternoon.

Threaten Boycott

The Brooklyn Diocese Union of the Holy Name society, claiming to represent the sentiments of 200,000 members, threatened to boycott the advertisers of a New York radio station which had barred Coughlin from the air. The Jersey City Council of the Knights of Columbus also took Coughlin's side.

The controversy centered on whether or not Coughlin traduced the Jewish race when, three weeks ago, he asserted that Jews had led and financed the Russian revolution and had been in control of Communism. Coughlin maintains that he hadn't condemned Jews as a whole, but merely Communistic Jews, and that Jews should join in a fight on Communism. His opponents have charged that he was seeking to arouse anti-semitism.

Second Rebuke

Mundelein became the second prince of Coughlin's church to speak out against his radio utterances. William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston did so in 1934. Mundelein's statement

LITHUANIAN CAPITAL UNDER MARTIAL LAW; STUDENTS RIOT

MEMEL, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Kaunas (Kovno), capital of Lithuania, and Kaunas province were put under a state of emergency today as German Nazis celebrated a landslide in yesterday's diet election in Memel territory.

The state of emergency was imposed after a sudden surge of demonstrations by students who demanded the return to power of exiled Augustinas Waldemaras, who for years had urged close friendship with Germany. Thus it was indicated that coincident with what approximated a clean election sweep for German Nazis resident in Memel territory, there was a vigorous new campaign for reorientation of Lithuania's foreign policy on a basis of friendship for the greater German Reich.

Up To Hitler

What lay in store for Memel territory, taken from Germany after the World war and handed to Lithuania, was uncertain.

Dr. Ernest Neumann, the German leader, commented to the United Press that Memel Germans had proved their loyalty to Germany. As to the territory's future, and the possibility that it might be demanded by Germany, he said:

"I do not know. The decision lies elsewhere"—meaning that the next word, if any, must come from Berlin.

Too Late?

The heavy vote yesterday shows that you cannot change people by using night sticks on them as the Lithuanians have done on us during the last 15 years. They come to us now offering us the same programs that we begged for for 15 years. Perhaps they have come too late. We shall beg no more."

Dr. Neumann was asked whether the new diet of Memel would initiate some move to take the territory back to Germany.

"It is possible," he replied, "that something will be done."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—(UP)—City health officers today sought ways of killing millions of rats after Dr. George Parrish, head of the health department, reported increases in the rodent population paralleled conditions prior to the 1924 bubonic plague epidemic.

In 1924 a plague epidemic broke out in the Mexican quarter, and today Parrish warned the city health commission immediately preventive measures should be instituted to prevent a similar recurrence.

Parrish said squirrels and rats in the three counties immediately north of Los Angeles county are heavily infected with the disease. City authorities may seek state and federal aid.

OKEH "HANDS OFF" POLICY

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 12.—(UP)—The United States and Argentina agreed today on the outstanding objective of the eighth Pan-American conference.

The agreement is for a solemn, forceful warning to the world by the 21 American nations to resist as one any attempt at aggression or any outside attempt to subvert American political institutions.

Overcome Differences

Jose Maria Cantillo, Argentine foreign minister, will leave for Buenos Aires tonight after instructing the Argentine delegation to the conference so as to permit rapid translation into action of the agreement for definition of a common American defense front.

Developments of the past 24 hours brought the United States and Argentine viewpoints together after a short period during which they differed over how far the terms of a defense accord should go.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull submitted a proposal to various delegations which seemed drafted in a manner to constitute a definite pact of defensive alliance. Cantillo repeatedly has announced that Argentina will refuse to sign any pact or alliance.

Accepts Viewpoint

However, Cantillo informed Hull that Argentina is ready to join a defense accord if it is put in the form of a declaration or resolution of the conference.

Hull therefore as obliged to accept Cantillo's viewpoint, which some leading members of the conference feel to be equally as effective as a pact or alliance signed by the American nations.

The United States-Argentine agreement is so complete, it was learned, that Cantillo assured Hull that if unforeseen obstacles arise at the conference, he will return to Lima to help smooth them out.

Cooperation Assured

The assurance was regarded as an indication that the Argentine delegation has instructions to cooperate closely with the United States on the basis accepted by Cantillo and Hull.

Dr. Afranio Mello Franco of Brazil was elected president of the commission for organization of peace, the most important committee of the conference. He received 20 of the 21 votes. Brazil voting for Dr. Pedro Manini Rios of Uruguay.

EIGHT HURT IN AREA MISHAPS

Eight persons, none seriously, were injured during the week end in Orange county traffic accidents. Records of eight accidents, several of them spectacular, were made by police and hospital authorities.

Mrs. J. E. Orr, reported to be an expectant mother, Route 4, Box 290, Anaheim, escaped serious injury when a left tire blew out on her car the car collided with one operated by Dewey Wood, 27, Oceanview, at 7 a. m. today on Huntington Beach boulevard one-half mile north of Five Points.

Overtakes Twice

According to reports, the Wood car overturned twice, leaped through the air against a pole, becoming entangled with spikes used by workmen in climbing the pole, hung suspended above the ground approximately 10 feet. Wood escaped injury miraculously in the spectacular accident.

At 8:50 p. m. yesterday, on Manchester boulevard two miles south of Anaheim, a car driven by Drew Kline, 23, San Diego, overturned when the steering wheel locked but none was injured. Donald Davis, 28, Los Angeles, was arrested by highway patrol officers Saturday evening on a charge of failure to stop and give name and address after an accident involving property damage.

Hitch-Hikes Away

According to allegations, after the Davis car and one driven by Roy Douth, 42, LaVerne, collided in Brea canyon half a mile north of Brea, Davis drove his car a short distance away, off the highway among some trees, then hitch-hiked to Pomona to obtain a tire. When he returned with the tire, Police Chief W. H. Williams, Brea and highway patrol officers were waiting for him.

Jose Ramirez, 38, Downey, was charged with drunk driving, having no operator's license and having faulty car registration yesterday afternoon after his car and one driven by Mrs. K. L. Holmes, 42, Fullerton, collided on Commonwealth 110 feet west of Indiana, in Buena Park. Mrs. Holmes, Jack Holmes, 8, and Albert Holmes, 11, were injured. Both cars were badly damaged.

Taken to Hospital

Carlotta Juhlin, 1036 West Fourth, Santa Ana, was cut and bruised last night at First and Booth streets, when his car and one driven by Richard Ewert, 107, Wright street, collided. The Juhlin car overturned in the intersection and onto a lawn of the corner home. Juhlin was treated at Santa Ana Valley hospital for right shoulder knee and mouth injuries.

Slight damage resulted at First and Broadway Saturday when cars operated by Annie Beasley, 934 West Bishop, and Mrs. Ruth Bush, Orange, collided. Mrs. Robert Bolen, 50, Orange, suffered possible rib fractures at 17th and Main Saturday evening when cars driven by Bolen, 49, and Ronald Wilson, 22, 702 East Chestnut, collided. C. W. Durham, Long Beach, was injured yesterday at Fifth and Main, in an accident involving a car driven by Arthur Bliss, Santa Ana, police reported.

PLEA FOR NEEDY SOUNDED AS DRIVE FOR FUNDS MOVES SLOW

Six more contributors to The Register-Salvation Army Christmas fund today swelled the total contributions of $49 as the goal of $800 was approached slowly, according to Major John Naton, who is in charge of the campaign.

"The need this year is great," Major Naton said. "Typical of the type of family we are endeavoring to assist and bring cheer to is the 'Black' family."

Tells of Plight

"Mr. Blank has odds and ends jobs that just keeps his wife and six children in the bare necessities of life. He recently became ill and the tiny income on which they had been subsisting is stopped. A call to the Salvation Army brought the speedy answer with food, clothing and other supplies needed by the family."

"Until Mr. Blank is able to return to work the Army will see that there is no real privation suffered and it is to give to these unfortunates and others like them that we are urging generous contributions to the Register-Salvation Army Christmas fund."

In addition to those previously acknowledged the following contributions have been received: R. D. Stinson, $5; P. W. Neff, $2; G. W. Bond and son, $10; Mrs. Frank B. Browning, $10; F. F. Mead, $5; and Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Hawk, $2.

Burglary Reported

Thirty-six quarts of wine were stolen in a burglary of the Golden Glow Beverage company plant, 1802 West Fourth street, early Saturday. Arthur Croteau, manager, reported. The wine was valued at $12.60. Entrance was gained by smashing a window.

George Stout, Lincoln hotel, was shopping in a downtown store Saturday afternoon when a pickpocket obtained his purse and $15 cash, he believed. He missed the purse after leaving the store. Drums and accessories valued at $165 and bought on contract by someone who assertedly pawned them at a local pawn shop, and disappeared, were recovered, police said. The equipment belongs to the Blu-Note Music company.

Police recovered five business college study books after J. D. Farley, 2427 Valencia, reported seeing them in a clump of bushes yesterday. Automobiles recovered include those of Harry Thurstan, Anaheim, stolen from a lot, 315 East First street, found on Huntington Beach boulevard near 17th street; Mrs. Hazel Harper, Santa Ana, stolen from 209 Halladay, recovered in Fullerton; and Navor Vargas, 1035 Logan, Santa Ana, stolen from Fourth and Garfield, recovered near Irvine ranch.

Debating Teams Opens Battles

Coach John H. McCoy's debating squad opened its program of for- ensic activities last week when they journeyed to Fullerton, meeting four other nearby cities in the first league competition of the year. Representing Santa Ana were Edward Budd, Isamu Masuda, Gilman Brookings, Ernest Barrett and James Tranter.

Debating on the subject, "Resolved: That the United States should cease to use public funds for the purpose of stimulating business," the Santa Ana men were divided into two teams. Results of the tournament are withheld until after the third tournament is concluded in March.

Club Speaker

A discussion of the present-day relationships of business and government by C. V. Orr, vice-president of the Chrysler Motor Car company, above, will be the high- light of the Rotary club meeting tomorrow noon at the Masonic Temple. A former member of the Rotary club at Waterloo, Iowa, and of Club Number 1, of Chicago, Orr will be introduced to the club by Mac O. Robbins, program chairman for the day.

OVER THE TRANSOM

One eighth of an inch in height is the celluloid doll owned by Margery Lou Nelson of Costa Mesa, and prize winner of the smallest doll entered in the recent holiday festival and doll fair sponsored by the Mesa P. T. A. Perhaps a lack of material stunted its growth, but only added to the careful skill of its creator. Details of the doll's features and costume are discernable through a microscope.

"New Old Actors, Portraits, Pictures," is the literal translation of a book of rare Japanese prints owned by Postmaster Evelyn Rider of Balboa Island. Many of the prints, ranging in age from 75 to 150 years are original Hiroshadas, with Kunishige and Kunimash contributing artists. The rake on the front cover signifies a "raking together of old and new" while a pine tree, significant of old age is on the back. Figures, draped around the tree are a poem concerning "an old couple whose teeth are shaky."

Perhaps the "old gray mare ain't what she used to be," but neither is the Christmas tree. Gay red, blue, silver, and even bright yellow trees line the highway stands and stores, and the old-fashioned one in green is the real rarity.

Many worthwhile contributions were made through the "sweetness and light" era, with modesty stressed as one of the virtues and special marks of a "lady." Heard white leghorn chickens described as being "limbhorn" chickens and the year was not 1860.

2 MEN SOUGHT AS RACKETEERS

The Christmas holiday season starts criminals on many rackets, particularly the racket by which they fleece citizens out of money through selling them cheap furs at outlandish prices.

Today, Captain Herman Zabel, head of the sheriff's office identification bureau, pointed out that fact and asked persons throughout the county to be on the alert for a pair of fur racketeers who have been active in central California in recent days.

The "Cover" Large Area The "fur salesmen," believed to be the same two who operated here upon two occasions a few weeks ago, are a German and Jew, according to police identifications. They are driving a 1936 Ford V-8 sedan, have worked in Los Angeles as well as Orange county. Anyone hearing of their appearance here is asked to contact police or sheriff's officers.

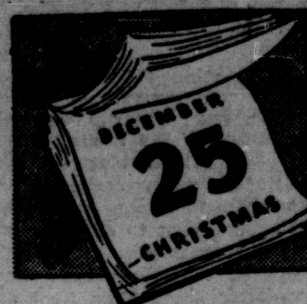

According to Sheriff George J. Overholt of Fresno in a police teletype dispatch, 10 small, cheap pelts were sold to a Fresno Japanese woman for $200 when their actual value was but one-tenth that amount.

IN FOUR-LEAF CLOVER ELLINGTON, Conn. (UP)—If four-leaf clovers bring luck, Mrs. Leon Parker has enough to last a lifetime. She picked more than 400 of them during the summer months.

Contest No. 2 is scheduled for Feb. 23. Coach McCoy stated. Jaycees represented were San Bernardino, Fullerton, Riverside, Pomona and Santa Ana. Last year's winner was San Bernardino, with Santa Ana taking second place.

RIVER WATER USAGE STUDIED AT PARLEY

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 12. (UP)—The first of two major Colorado river water resources meetings opened today with delegates drafting proposals for basin development and discussing other river matters.

With R. M. Woods, Berkeley, Calif., regional chairman of the national resources committee, presiding, the drainage basin subcommittee took up projects already under way on the river.

Ralf R. Woolley, Salt Lake City, chairman of a subcommittee acting for the U. S. department of interior, said development of future undertakings on the Colorado and a programming of projects were among the important topics of the meeting.

Study Rates
Six divisions of the interior department — mines, grazing, reclamation, Indian service, national parks and geological survey — were represented.

The seven Colorado river basin states will gather Wednesday and Thursday to consider Boulder Dam power rates and the claims of Mexico to river waters.

A committee of 16, including representatives from the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California and the Los Angeles bureau of light and power, will attend the Boulder Dam meeting.

Chairman of the Colorado state water conservation board, announced five major matters would be considered:

Seek Solutions
The Mexican claims; a report on water supplies in the Colorado river which may be available to Mexico, application by Arizona for a preliminary power permit for a proposed canyon bridge project; federal funds for development of the river basin, and the Boulder Dam power rates.

"For the first time in many years all seven states are striving in the interest of expedited development and amicable relations to work out these complicated matters," Judge Stone said.

States represented are California, Arizona, Nevada, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, and New Mexico.

and a fine of $45,000.

Others Named
Burns was among several Hollywood and stage figures questioned before the federal grand jury concerning alleged smuggling operations which took place in the United States and then of two persons, Burns Chaperau and Mrs. Edgar J. Lauder, wife of a New York supreme court justice.

Federal authorities questioned Jack Benny, Jack Pearl and other notables of the amusement world in connection with the case.

The new indictments were opened today on the motion of the United States attorney. The first indictment named Burns and Chaperau, former convict, self-styled attaché of the Nicaraguan legation and an international smuggler.

The second indictment named Burns, Chaperau and a woman known as "Ma Honey" or Paula Gheyskens.

The indictments charged that Burns, in collusion with Chaperau and the woman, aided and abetted in the evasion of payments of duties by smuggling into the United States $4885 worth of jewelry.

The jewelry included a gold bracelet set with diamond and sapphires, a gold ring with a cluster of diamonds around a center diamond and a gold bracelet set with diamonds. The gems apparently were obtained by Burns for his wife and partner, Gracie Allen.

The specified offenses occurred on three occasions, according to the indictment—Jan. 28, 1936, March 10, 1938, and May 16, 1938.

Women Leaders Of Farm Bureau Approve '39 Plans

Simms, Fresno, Department Chairman of the Farm Home Department; Mrs. E. Irene Anderson, Corona, Department Chairman of the Poultry Department; Mrs. B. H. Schulte, Monterey, former Chairman of Farm Home Dept. Progress reports of Col. Fred T. Robson and Dr. George H. Hecke of the California State Commission met with hearty approval of the delegates.

Death Ends Career Of Gaston Means

He started the proceedings which ended in his conviction in May, 1933, when he was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment and fined $10,000.

Noted Liar
Much of the Means legend came from Means himself and, as he was a pathological liar, the record of his indictments is the only trustworthy record of his career.

These began in 1914 when he was charged with swindling an insurance company of $4000. In 1917, he was handling the million dollar estate of Mrs. Marie King, a Chicago widow. Mrs. King was killed at a moonlight target shooting party in North Carolina, and he was charged with murdering her. It developed that she was planning to marry again, that this would eliminate him as her "financial advisor," but he said it was an accident and a jury in his native state believed him. Her lawyers charged later that he had robbed her of a half million and a court ruled that he had forged a "second" will of her first husband, but nothing ever came of it.

Named U. S. Agent
Next he wrapped a piece of wood in heavy brown paper, insured it for a gold brick, expressed it to himself, then tried to collect $57,000. This failed. Meanwhile, he had been attempting for years to get himself appointed an agent of the federal department of justice and in 1921 he succeeded. Two years later he provided a major scandal of the Harding administration. It developed that he and his accomplices had accepted bribes totaling $65,000, that they had opened warehouse to bootleggers, profiting $100,000 thereby, that they had shaken down a Chicago bootlegger for $75,000, and that they had attempted to bribe four of his high superiors. For this, he served four years in Atlanta federal penitentiary.

He was released in 1928 and in 1930 published his book, "The Strange Death of President Harding" in which he inferred that Harding had not died a natural death, but had been poisoned. He became a violent anti-Communist and authorities next found him in a lucrative job "protecting" a wealthy New York society woman and her daughter from "red agents." For this service, he was said to have persuaded his client to part with $100,000.

German Spy
Means served for several years as an agent of the Burns Detective agency and was rated as one of the most brilliant detectives of his day. He claimed to have served Germany as an espionage agent during the World War, receiving $1,000 a week and many thousands in bonuses for tying up munitions plants working for the allies.

His last exploit occurred in 1936. He tried to smuggle a letter out of Leavenworth prison "confessing" that he originated the Lindbergh plot. This was taken as a scheme to get of prison and he was merely disciplined.

Predict Huge New U. S. Deficit

make any major change in the condition of the treasury.

New Methods
Rather than materially to cut government expenditures, this new congress, sent to office on a somewhat changing tide of public sentiment, is expected to undertake to alter some New Deal spending methods. Conservative congressmen of both parties are restive over surrender of spending prerogatives to Mr. Roosevelt. Control over spending was shifted from the capitol to the White House by the lump-sum appropriation method of providing Mr. Roosevelt with emergency relief funds. Once those funds were voted, Mr. Roosevelt was able to distribute them largely at his own discretion.

This winter will bring the opposing forces to a showdown on the curbing of relief funds, a process whereby congress not only would appropriate relief or public works funds but would resume the practice of stipulating precisely where and how they should be spent.

Program Opposed

Typical of reasons why congress is not expected to vote the budget into balance this year is the dispute over relief expenditures in southern states. Various Democrats have criticized the relief program and some of them assert privately that they would be happy to have Administrator Hopkins and WPA withdrawn entirely from their states. But as a substitute they would like to continue substantial expenditures on roads and schools. No economy would be affected by such a program although the method and control of federal spending might be altered.

Third largest item in the current budget is $1,050,000,000 for national defense. Legislative departments and agencies and the judiciary are to cost $1,137,500,000 this year. Recovery and relief will have consumed more than $2,150,000,000 by June 30, when this fiscal year ends.

Those items probably will bear a different relationship in the new budget to be submitted in about three weeks. National defense, then, easily may become the most expensive item of government operation. That does not mean that Mr. Roosevelt will ask for $2,000,000,000 or more for defense. But the defense item probably will go up by about $100,000,000 or $500,000,000 and recovery and relief may be trimmed in proportion.

URGES TIGHTENING OF DEFENSES
TUNIS, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Erik Labonne, French resident general, has forwarded a report to Paris recommending the strengthening of the French military position in Tunisia as the result of Italy's anti-French campaign, it was learned today.

Further, it was learned, the report recommends the strict limitation of Italian immigration into Tunisia.

The report was drafted by experts of the French colonial service in cooperation with Labonne. Twenty-nine pages long, it was sent to Paris yesterday.

Recommendations
The report recommends that every inch of Tunisia, as well as all French possessions in North Africa, be held at all costs. It advocated strict immigration regulations in Tunisia, as regards both Italians seeking to come here from Italy and those who are natives of Tripolitania, adjoining Tunisia on the east.

"Italian colonists in Tunisia have a more cohesive character than the French," the report says. "The population has become heterogeneous as the result of liberal naturalization measures enacted immediately after the World War. It is therefore necessary that Tunisia not be permitted to become overpopulated with Italians."

The report goes on to enumerate various phases of the problem of Tunis, including the growth of the Italian population until there are 94,000 Italians in the protectorate and 108,000 French. After enumerating these factors, the report again emphasizes:

Cite Dangers
"In view of Italy's present colonial policy, French influence must be reinforced and protective measures must be taken against Tunisia becoming overpopulated with Italians."

Reliable sources said that the defense portion of the report, drawn up by another group of experts, recommended the strengthening of coastal fortifications of Tunisia as "the most likely target of Italian attack in the near future." Tunis, the report also asserted, was of vital strategic importance to the defense of French Algeria and Morocco.

Lithuania Is Swept By Riots

ency proclaimed in Kaunas and Kaunas province, Lithuania, was the result of an alleged plot by Democrats to oust President Antanas Smetonas with the aid of followers of Augustinas Waldemaras, including some men in the army and the home guard.

It was added that the situation in Kovno looked most serious and that the government alleged that Polish agents were using Waldemaras' name to weaken the government.

Will He Call the Weather?

Commander Francis Reichelderfer, reportedly scheduled for appointment as chief of U. S. weather bureau.

views "do not represent the doctrine or sentiment of the church." Mundelein had been back only a week from Vatican City where he was received in a number of extended audiences by Pope Pius XI. It was believed that he had discussed Coughlin with the pontiff. While churchmen doubted privately that he had acted with the personal approval of the Pope, they pointed out that the weight of his statement was increased by the fact that he acted outside his jurisdiction.

Coughlin's ecclesiastical superior is Archbishop Edward Mooney of Detroit who passes on his radio speeches.

The PAYOFF TROJANS RETURN TO PRACTICE

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK.—Offhand, I would say that the Giants got the better of their three-man trade with the Cubs, if for no other reason than Bill Terry improves his club's morale.

Regarding the ability of the players involved, Billy Jurges is the equal of Dick Bartell, Frank Demaree is more dependable all-around performer than huge Hank Leiber, and Ken O'Dea is much younger than Gus Mancuso.

If O'Dea regains the catching and batting form that made him so promising up until last season, there isn't likely to be much question as to which outfit was short-changed.

It became more and more apparent that Leiber, the brilliant freshman of 1935, simply wouldn't play at the Polo Grounds. The Arizona collegian didn't hit it off with Terry any too well. He held out, sulked, and appeared lazy.

Leiber, whom the Cubs will attempt to palm off as the long distance right-hand hitter they've been seeking, batted only .269 in 98 starts in 1937. He got into only 81 games in 1937, when Bob Feller put him in the hospital by striking him on the head with a pitched ball in spring exhibition.

There is no reason to suspect that Demaree will not get back into his old stride next spring.

The Californian compiled an average of only .273 last term, but is every bit the .350 hitter he was in 1936. That mark was no fluke, for he came back with .324 in 1937.

He's a workhorse and a team man.

There is another angle to the deal which has not been publicized.

Bartell was handicapped by a nub or bone growth on his throwing elbow last trip and pulled up with arthritis at critical stages of the race.

There is no assurance that Roaring Richard won't be similarly bothered in 1939.

Jurges is one of the finest fielding shortstops in the game.

With Burgess Whitehead, he gives the Giants a second basing combination second to none, although Bartell and Billy Herman won't leave the Bruins short-handed in that department.

Jurges had a splendid season at bat in 1937. His .343 of 1937 was 13 points under Bartell's figure. The latter swats a longer ball.

The switch breaks up the Damon and Pythias tie-up of Jurges and Billy Herman, who have been inseparable since they reported to the Cubs. It practically brings Jurges home. He is a product of Brooklyn.

Armstrong Best Of 'Em All—McLarnin

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) — You've heard Tom, you've heard Dick, and you've heard Harry say that Henry Armstrong, ounce for ounce, pound for pound, is the greatest fighter with his fists in the world.

That's a very nice tribute, indeed, but it doesn't carry too much weight because it is pretty generally known that the average fight fan—your Toms, Dicks and Harrys—wouldn't know a feint from a right cross. But when a fellow like Jimmy McLarnin, who has fought thirteen world champions, tells you that Henry Armstrong is the finest fighter he ever laid eyes on—well, you write a story about it, which is just what I am doing.

"He's a lotta something," McLarnin said as he walked down the first fairway of the Lakeside Country club. "Henry's a once-in-a-generation fighter. You won't see another one like him, and neither will I. I've been fighting twenty years, and he's the best I ever saw. He can stay, he can take it, he can box, and he can knock your head off. That's all you can ever ask of a fighter."

Knowing McLarnin to be only thirty or thereabouts, I questioned his statement that he had been fighting twenty years.

"Yes, I've been fighting twenty years," he said. "Started when I was ten. And I'm telling you the truth when I tell you that of all the 125 fights I had, the toughest was the first one. That one was a long time ago, but I still remember it."

As he walked along, Jimmy told me about that fight. It was in Vancouver, at "Rough House" Charley's Second Division Athletic club. Ten years old, and weighing but 65 pounds, he walked two miles to the club and fought a four-rounder with Clarence Robinson.

"Clarence liked to have killed me," Jimmy said. "I was up and down, up and down. I remember when it was all over I was afraid to walk home, because I had to cross over a dark bridge. So I asked 'Rough House' Charley for carfare—six cents. He gave me a dollar, and all the thousands of dollars I made in later years."

CLAIM 'DEAL' IN BONURA'S TRADE TO N. L.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK. — The important man in baseball today was Zeke Bonura, hippopotamus-like first baseman who'll wear the spangles of the New York Giants next season.

Bonura's importance isn't derived from his size or fact that he'll play for the Giants in 1939 but the fact that he is the key man in a deal which supposedly swings the American league in favor of night baseball.

The best information in baseball circles is that Cleveland, the last club to withdraw waivers on Bonura, released its claim to the colorful Italian — a man they couldn't use anyway — in return for Washington's vote for night ball. The Indians, who want to play seven nocturnal games in Cleveland's Municipal stadium with its seating capacity of 18,000, had mustered four votes for night baseball. When they waived on Bonura they obtained the fifth vote necessary to swing the deal.

Other Clubs Want Lights

Other clubs voting for night ball reportedly are the Browns, Athletics and White Sox.

The Giants gave Pitcher Tom Baker, last year with Jersey City, infielder Jim Carlin, who played with the Richmond Piedmont league club, and an undisclosed sum of cash, believed to be $30,000, to the Senators for Bonura.

In 137 games last season Bonura batted .259, hit 22 home runs and drove in 114 runs. With the Polo Grounds' short left field stands to shoot at, Bonura is expected to prove a vital man on the offense. But he is a weak sister on defense.

Manager "Bucky" Harris of the Senators announced that fancy-fielding Jim Waddell will be Washington's full-time first baseman. The Senators are still in a trading mood and are said to have Shortstop Cecil Travis on the block, with Detroit the principal bidder.

Cleveland comes to the major league meeting tomorrow with half of its ball club on the market, but at a price considered too high. Already two pending Indian deals — Outfielder "Lemon" Solters to Washington for Outfielder Al Simmons and Pitcher Denny Galehouse to the Red Sox for infielder Eric McNair—have collapsed. C. C. Slapnicka, inquired that he would give Outfielder Earl Averill and Infielder Odel Hale to the Tigers for Outfielder Pete Fox but the Tigers haven't nibbled.

HUNT. BCH., TUSTIN SWEEP COURT PLAY

Orange county high schools are playing some of the finest basketball in Southern California this season.

This was demonstrated convincingly at La Verne Saturday night when Huntington Beach and Tustin swept an invitation tournament, to which came some of the strongest floor teams of the Southland. Huntington Beach won in Class A (large schools) and Tustin caked walked to victory in Class B (small schools).

Huntington Beach defeated Whittier in the semi-finals, 32-30, and then subdued San Bernardino, 31-24.

Tustin, defending champion, had even an easier time in its division. The classy Farmers eliminated Chino in the semi-finals, 25-5, and routed Monita in the finals, 31-17. Hal Lilley, forward, was high with 14 points.

Huntington Beach and Tustin not only won the team trophy and individual awards but placed two men on the all-tournament lineup. The Oilers qualified L. Gifford and Flannigan; Tustin landed Lilley and Walt Linker.

Getting ready for bigger game at the Southern Counties tournament at Huntington Beach this week-end, Tustin takes on the strong Whittier A and B teams at Tustin tomorrow afternoon at 3. Whittier won the Southern California high school championship last year.

PASTOR 8-5 CHOICE

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Bob Pastor, New York heavyweight, was favored today in odds ranging from 8 to 5 up to defeat Gus Dorazio of Philadelphia, who never has been knocked out, in their 10-round fight here tonight.

Pastor, with 12 victories and one draw, has not lost a bout this year.

AT THE TRACKS

Santa Anita — Reduction of Santa Anita clubhouse admissions to $2.20, tax paid, for the prevailing $3.30 of previous seasons, and setting of general admission at $1.10, tax paid, are announced by the Los Angeles Turf club as tickets for the opening day—Saturday, Dec. 31—go on sale today at Santa Anita park.

Substantial reinforced concrete and steel additions to the clubhouse will more than double the seating facilities and augment the appointments and conveniences. A roof extends over the club enclosure.

A new main entrance to the grandstand is included in the extensive improvements made to Santa Anita park. It is centrally located with covered ticket windows and is directly in line with the ornamental fountain in the enlarged paddock gardens. A new covered saddling paddock fronts the walking ring and is accessible to all parts of the park for the pre-race activities.

The infield, a favorite vantage point to view the races by many spectators, has a new floral theme this season. It has benches and walkways and is reached by a tunnel from the grandstand terrace.

The next business at Santa Anita will be the closing of entries Dec. 24 for the New Year Handicap, which will be the feature on Monday, Jan. 2. Workouts now in progress, will give a line on the candidates that are in training for the event, which was won last season by Gosum.

The California Breeders' Champion Stakes, which will headline opening day festivities, closed August 1, 1938, and payments have been made on 54 California-bred two-year-olds to make them eligible for the rich stakes that started with $10,000 added.

The opening day card is announced as follows:

NEW YORK.—Ward Cuff, a Standings and schedule: front—23-17 when Cuff did his hard-hitting back of concrete and steel, was the toast of the town today as New York hailed its gridiron Giants—new world champions of professional football.

There were heroes aplenty out there on the muddy Polo Grounds turf yesterday as the Giants conquered the Green Bay Packers, 23-17, in the National Professional Football league championship play-off. But it remained for Cuff, a virtual unknown when he played at Marquette to top the wreath with a smashing tackle that saved the game late in the fourth period.

It was THE tackle of a game so hard-fought that the crowd of 48,120—largest ever to see this gridiron world series—marveled that flesh and bone could stand up under such pounding. There were times when cool-witted players saved some of their hot-tempered mates from swinging their fists in free-for-alls.

It was a game in which the boys were leveling all the way—not for alma mater but for dollars and cents. And when it was over, Cuff and Johnny Dell Isola, Giant guard, were in a hospital with possible fractures, respectively, to a breast bone and the vertebrae.

The Giants, winners in 1934 and first team ever to take the title a second time since the playoff system between the Western and Eastern division winners was inaugurated in 1933, were out in

The Packers return home today. The Giants reassemble in Los Angeles Jan. 2 or 3 to prepare for a game against a team of all-stars Jan. 15.

The undefeated Irvine Beapickers, who early in the "Y" league season handed T. J. Neal's cagers their lone defeat, clash with the sporting goods five at 7:15 again tonight in a game that will either scramble the standings or send the Beapickers home as undisputed first-half champions.

A victory for Neal's five would throw the race into a three-way tie between Irvine, Neal's and Al's Lock and Key shop.

HUNT. BEACH GOLFER WINS AT FINAL HOLE

WEST WINDS

Completely reversing its humorous intention, Huntington Beach will retain a franchise in the powerful National Night Ball league, despite the resignation of Joe Rodgers as president and manager.

That the Oilers mean business, with or without the man who brought them out of the doldrums and gave the city a pennant-winner three times in five years (finishing second twice), is indicated by the election of Mayor M. M. McCallen as president to succeed Rodgers.

McCallen promises the community another strong team, although the Oiler commission has granted outright releases to all of last year's players, who were generally regarded as "Rodgers property" anyway.

Says wealthy Mayor McCallen, who now adds softball to his "string" of activities which includes oil, politics and race horses: "As commissioners in charge of the Oiler team, we will finance the project through gate receipts and private contributions. The city will not be called upon for a dime. They provide the park and that is sufficient."

"In moulding a strong team—and let me tell you we'll have a good one—the commission will retain the services of some veteran team members, augmented by some young Huntington Beach players."

"We invite the co-operation of the citizens of the entire community in building up and maintaining interest in softball. We are giving the game back to the fans, confident they will aid us in every possible way to keep the Oilers at the top in the National Night league."

For sure, only three members of last year's "Snowwhite" team, which outlasted the "Seven Dwarfs" of the National wheel, will be back in Huntington Beach spangles. These are Catcher Alvin Robison, Infielder Henry Thierly and Pitcher "Fuzzy" Errington.

Reports persist, however, that Orville Schuchardt will cap a splendid career in the National division by becoming field manager of the champions. He is a fine player, a hustler and is highly regarded by fans and press.

Plans of other Huntington Beach stars are not known. A few may stick with the Oilers; some are likely to follow Joe Rodgers, wherever the doughy little skipper lights.

Anyway, they have been notified by the "new commission" of their release but invited to remain at Huntington Beach if desired.

The Huntington Beach commission is reorganized with Mayor McCallen as president, Cliff Kings as secretary-treasurer, and Art Andersen, Fred Grable and H. H. McVicar.

Feature hole of the match, and of the entire tournament for that matter, was the 339-yard 21st. Robertson was "away" and pitched within five feet of the flag. Ewert immediately holed a niblick shot from approximately 100 yards, giving him an eagle two. Robertson scored a birdie three, yet lost the hole.

LANSDALL AND FISHER READY FOR BOWL TEST

LOS ANGELES.—After a week's lay-off from the practice field, the University of Southern California football squad goes back into training today in preparation for its Rose Bowl battle with undefeated Duke Jan. 2.

Grenville (Grenny) Lansdall, a Trojan quarterback who missed most of the game with a knee injury, will rejoin the S. C. squad as will Bob Fisher, reserve tackle who was unable to play in Troy's 13-0 victory because of a sprained knee. With the return of these men, the Southern California aggregation will be at full strength for Coach Wallace Wade's unscathed on "Iron Dukes."

Practice drills on Bovard Field will take place only once daily despite the fact that the Christmas recess starts today and there will be no more university classes until January 3. From time to time, extra morning sessions may be called for the purposes of "skull practice," according to Coach Howard Jones.

Coach Jones hasn't seen his team assembled since it broke training after beating Notre Dame, and as far as he's concerned today's workout was much the same as the first practice of a new season.

"We're actually starting fresh," he explained. "The season is behind us and we've all had a long rest to recuperate. Now it's time to begin all over and that's what we'll do. We probably will hold two meetings a day, the first in the morning for a 'skull' session and the second in the afternoon for an actual drill."

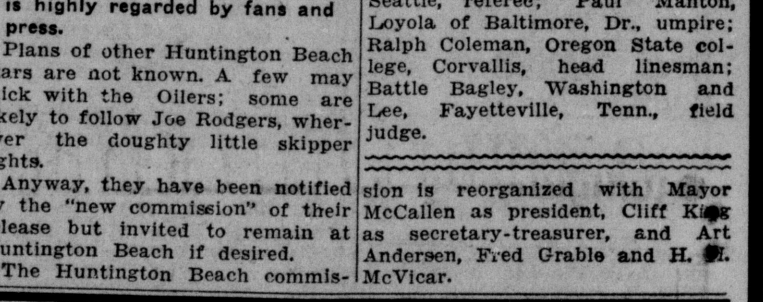

ROB MORRIS TO REFEREE ROSE BOWL GAME

SAN FRANCISCO.—(UP)—Football men were notified today by Herb Dana, commissioner of officials for the Pacific Coast conference, of their selection as officials for the annual Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena Jan. 2.

They were Bob Morris, formerly of Kansas, now residing in Seattle, referee; Paul Manton, Loyola of Baltimore, Dr., umpire; Ralph Coleman, Oregon State college, Corvallis, head linesman; Battle Bagley, Washington and Lee, Fayetteville, Tenn., field judge.

selection is reorganized with Mayor McCallen as president, Cliff Kings as secretary-treasurer, and Art Andersen, Fred Grable and H. H. McVicar.

PRIZE ESSAYS ARE PUBLISHED

Editor's Note: Appearing below is the first of three prize-winning essays chosen from more than 1,400 entries in a contest sponsored by the Traffic Safety Commission of Santa Ana. The author of the essay and winner of the first prize and $15 was Doris Jesse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jesse, 2121 1/2 North Main street. The other two will appear in The Register this week. Miss Jesse is a sophomore at the high school, and is under the tutelage of Mrs. Edith Thatcher, English instructor.

"SAFETY FIRST"

"Perhaps the most important and studied problem in the minds of the public today is the problem of safety. It is foremost in the minds of this generation's safety campaigners, who are trying to impress in the minds of the young people the art of self-protection.

"Moreover, the younger generation is actively participating in the campaign themselves, thus more firmly implanting in their minds the necessity for a preventive system for accidents. The appalling total of accidents is sufficient grounds for devising such a system.

"Here statistics such as are posted on our billboards, placarded in our streets and printed in our magazines can do little to avoid the hideous facts which they represent, however. By the force of repetition the annual slaughter of 36,000 people in automobiles has become as soothingly unimportant and remote to us as the drowning of 500,000 Chinese by flood. It is disappointingly true that some immediate evidence is necessary to convince us that safety caution, especially in driving, is worth the trouble.

"In their drive against the increasing death toll, the safety officials are urging automobile drivers to take yearly, the driver's test which has been greatly improved, thus safeguarding against possible weakening points. Four or six-lane highways, safety zones between lanes and under and overhead passes are all new safety precautions installed recently by the city and state.

"Probably the most difficult to contend with are the problems of hit-and-run and drunk driving, and jaywalkers. As a student and part of a campaign, I suggest arresting those people who do no cooperate in using well indicated crossings, carefully planned and constructed, and also revoking the licenses of the careless drivers who are so thoughtless of others. "Let us, as students, all cooperate with the government in this safety campaign—for SAFETY comes FIRST."

PATHETIC PLIGHT OF JEW IS GRAPHICALLY SHOWN IN LETTER

Showing to perfection the present pathetic condition of Jews in Germany, a letter was in possession of A. I. Mellenthin, president of the First National bank of Santa Ana, today asking that he do his utmost in aiding Josef Goldmann of Vienna and his family to get to the United States and establish new home and new life.

Goldmann, banker for 35 years in Austria, now a part of Germany, and expecting to continue in his job for the remainder of his working days, holds a hopeless viewpoint regarding his future in Europe. In Goldmann's letter from Vienna to the bank president here, he typed mostly with black ribbon. With red ribbon he inserted a clause stating that there is "no possibility whatever" for a Jew to find a position or any other kind of living. He also put the distress call, "SOS!" in red letters.

Only Help in U. S.

"Being a Jew," he wrote, "there is no possibility whatever for me to exist in this country. I take the liberty to address myself to you for help and assistance because I cannot remain in Germany and must emigrate from my home. USA is our only real help and our only real assistance, because an immigration is possible if somebody is willing to sign an affidavit. Therefore no other country in the whole world does assist us as much as your great country and this liberality gives me the courage to appeal to you in this hard time.

"I venture to ask you if you would have the great generosity and kindness of procuring me an affidavit for the immigration to USA for me and my family or to intervene among your noble-minded friends on my behalf so I may be enabled to create a new home for me and for my small family, three persons.

Finished His Studies

"My pretensions of life are very modest ones and my wife and I shall not be afraid of any labor, whatever it may be, to earn by our own hands our modest livelihood. My wife and I have different plans and ideas, which qualify us to be active in many kinds of work. For my person, I beg to say that I have finished my studies at the Vienna Commercial academy whereupon I entered the highly esteemed bankers' firm, Rosenfeld and Company, Vienna. In consequence of the events, I have lost my position, confidential clerk—procurist—which I thought to have for a lifetime after an activity of 35 years. Now I must change my profession and go away from this country.

Terrible situation

"In the bitterest time of my life and in the most terrible situation a man can get into, I implore you to treat in the affirmative my appeal to you. Excuse the trouble I cause you by my calls, 'SOS!' I beg to express my heartfelt and sincerest thanks in advance. I have the honor to be, dear sir, yours very respectfully and sincerely—(signed) Josef Goldmann."

Mellenthin is making a checkup to determine what might be done to aid the Goldmanns.

U. S. Farmers to Use California Plan of Action

Jimmie Fidler in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—What is there about screen fame that makes supposedly rational people lose all sense of perspective? I'm thinking just now of Princess Baba, daughter of Sir Charles Brooke, the "White Rajah" of Sarawak. The other day at Universal, I stopped on the set where "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" is being filmed. Princess Baba, playing "Little Egypt", the hooch dancer who shocked the patrons of the first Chicago Fair, was before the cameras, wearing the briefest costume that the Hays office allows. And I felt, in advance, the shudder that is going to shake the British Empire, when it sees this screen debut of the daughter of one of its highest official families.

Why is a girl, born to position and wealth, willing to pay such a price for a chance in Hollywood? I can't answer the question—and I doubt if Princess Baba can, either, for logic can't have much to do with it. The odds against her success after such a start are 100 to 1, for prospective stars are not given hooch-koochy bits as an introduction to the public. Yet she is willing to gamble family pride, social position and all on the single chance. From my viewpoint—that of an interested observer—she is committing the prize folly of all time.

And so is the studio. I don't think English audiences will appreciate the casting of a Princess of Sarawak as "Little Egypt." And Hollywood hasn't so many foreign markets that it can afford to flout the British sense of propriety. The fact that a girl may be foolish doesn't justify abetting her folly.

SLEEPER IN PARLEY TO AID REVISION OF REVENUE LAWS

Assessor James Sleeper had returned today from a Los Angeles conference, in which he and five other county assessors of the state were invited to assist in proposed revision of state revenue laws.

At the invitation of the state board of equalization, Assessor Sleeper joined the conference with Jacobs and Weinstein, experts representing a committee of the legislature named to revise the revenue laws. A small group of the more prominent assessors of the state asked to participate included Assessors George Meese of Contra Costa county, H. W. Pittman, Santa Clara county; C. B. Kelly, Sutter county; Russell Wolden, San Francisco county, and Milton Moore, deputy assessor of Los Angeles county.

Obsolete Laws
The conference, said Sleeper, worked on methods of scrapping obsolete laws and statutes too often patched with amendments, and replacing them with more simple laws fitted to present day conditions.

Sleeper was one of three assessors in the state who were earlier called into conference with the state board of equalization's personnel group to advise on the selection of an oil appraiser for the state board, also a rural land appraiser, urban land appraiser and building appraiser. The other two assessors, both from counties having, like Orange, large oil interests, were Reece of Ventura and Chief Deputy Hartman of Los Angeles.

The conference recommended an eligibility list from which the selections will be made.

Death Cheats Woman of $10,000 From Friend

Death cheated the late Mary Imogene Cushing, of Santa Ana, of inheriting an estate in excess of $10,000, it was disclosed today when the will of Allora Heck, who died December 7, was filed for probate in superior court.

The will left the entire estate to "my beloved friend," Mary Imogene Cushing. But the latter had already passed on, so the estate goes to six brothers and sisters of Allora Heck in Indiana and Kentucky.

Elks and Sons To Hold Annual Party On Tuesday Night

Elks and sons of Elks will get together tomorrow night for their annual father and son party at the Elks club, Exalted Ruler William W. "Bill" Garvin announced today.

Every member of the Elks lodge is urged to attend the special vaudeville program and luncheon with his own son or sons or the son of some friend.

Ten professional acts of vaudeville from Los Angeles will be presented, the entertainment bill being especially arranged for the boys in attendance. Following the entertainment, sandwiches, coffee, milk, "pop" and other refreshments will be provided—enough to take care of all of the hungry fathers and sons present. Festivities begin at 8 p. m.

Weather Expert To Talk Today

Dr. Irving P. Krick, of California Institute of Technology, noted for his long-range predictions of weather conditions, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Placentia Farm Center at 6:30 p. m. today at the Ann Marie tea room.

As School Children Lined Up for Register P.-T. A. Christmas Party

Scores of the thousands of school children of the city who jammed the Broadway Theater Saturday at the Register-P. T. A. Christmas party may be seen in the picture above, snapped by a Register photographer. Clutched in the hands of the "patrons" are "tickets" of canned goods and toys that will be distributed this week to more than 125 needy families of the city. Under the direction of Mrs. James Givens, Mrs. Dale Elliott, Mrs. Leslie Echols and Mrs. Dean Smiley, the "party" was held to be one of the most successful of its kind ever given. Ushers, projectionists and other employees of the theater contributed their services in conducting the program while the huge crowd was successfully handled by members of the Santa Ana police department. Following the party, a B. J. MacMullen truck carried the "tickets" in two truckloads to the board of education offices where the merchandise was sorted and made ready for distribution to various schools of the city. Fresh meats, vegetables, fruits and rolls will be added to the baskets that will be distributed by the Parent-Teachers' Association.

START OF SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS FROM BOOTHS TODAY

Santa Ana's Christmas seal booths were placed on the streets today, the booths being located at the northwest corner of Fourth and Bush streets and the northeast corner of Fourth and Main streets.

The booths have been attractively redecorated by NYA project workers under the direction of Robert Northcross, project supervisor, and Len Z. Edge, shop foreman.

Volunteer Workers Aid
Christmas seals in any amount may be purchased at these two locations. The booths will remain on the streets until Christmas time, and volunteer workers from several public-spirited organizations will sell the seals in the booths. Mrs. James Anderson is chairman of the booth sale committee for this city.

Individual booth chairmen and the organizations they represent include the following: Assistance league, Mrs. Z. B. West; Philathea Sunday school class, Mrs. Glenn D. Tidball; Women's club, Mrs. Art Eklund; Women's society of First Baptist church, Mrs. Russell Crouse; Ladies' Aid society of First Presbyterian church, Mrs. A. E. Ellis; Two-In-One class of First Methodist church, Mrs. J. A. Randall; Girl Reserves, Margaret McCulloch; American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. Eugene Robinson; Y.L.L. Juniors, Betty Mae Engleman; Girls Ebel, Barbara Tucker; Working Girls, Mrs. F. A. Pinkston and Junior Ebel, Miss Betty Smith.

Fight Tuberculosis
Mrs. Anderson pointed out that the booth seal sale is part of the annual Christmas seal sale drive which starts on Thanksgiving day and lasts until Christmas. Funds raised by sale of the seals, which are used to decorate holiday mail and packages, are used to finance the constant battle against tuberculosis.

GROUP FAVORS LOCAL METHODS

If the national organization of farmers, ranchers and allied agricultural interests comes into being it will be largely patterned after the existing Associated Farmers of California organization, Holmes Bishop, president of the state group, told The Register today.

Bishop, who has just returned from week of conferences with agricultural leaders of the state and nation in Ventura, stated that the movement for a national organization came from outside California, particularly those states where agriculture is the dominant factor.

Committee In Study
"There was no desire on the part of members of the Associated Farmers of California for a national organization," Bishop said. "At the present time there is a committee of seven men, headed by Walter E. Garrison, of Lodi, Cal., that is studying the California organization and the national organization, if and when it is formed, will be patterned after the California plan."

"Representatives of six states are serving on the committee. States that have already signified interest in the California organization include Oregon, Colorado, Montana, Arizona, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Future meetings of the committee and their findings are subsequent to the call of the committee," Bishop said.

Lola Weethee is Bride at Sunday Rites

Another pretty wedding was added to the list of December nuptials Sunday afternoon in the Colonial chapel on West Seventeenth street where Miss Lola Audrey Weethee, daughter of Mrs. Beth Weethee, 2058 Bush street, became the bride of William E. Baer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baer, 1841 West Fourth street.

As guests entered the chapel, they were asked to sign their names in a pretty book over which Mrs. Bert Skiles officiated. She wore a teal blue frock with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. Ushering the 130 guests to their places were Elbert Smith and Bert Skiles.

Irma Baxter Owens was at the organ, playing "I Love You Truly" and the Wedding Marches, in addition to accompanying for her own vocal solo, "Until."

Arranged at the altar were palms and large bouquets of white and yellow pompon chrysanthemums, while an archway topped with wedding bells completed the bridal setting. The Rev. L. D. Meggers read the three o'clock rites, during which Miss Weethee was given in marriage by a close family friend, Ben Smith.

Lace Over Satin

The bride wore white lace over satin with a bouquet of gardenias from which fell showers of orange blossoms. Orange blossoms also formed a halo for her long veil, the same which was worn recently by Miss Eleanor Henry when she became the bride of Walter Babchuck. A crystal necklace which was the bridegroom's gift to Miss Weethee, and a dainty blue lace handkerchief, were other accessories adding notes of tradition to the bride's costume.

Miss Isabel Smith, maid of honor, wore pink net over taffeta, with a sweet pea lalo matching the Colonial bouquet which she carried. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Golding's little daughter, Miss Patsy Golding, as flower girl, wore blue net over taffeta. Homer Edwards was best man.

More than 50 guests called at the Baer home during a reception later in the afternoon. Tiered wedding cake, fruit punch and coffee were served from a candelit table. The bride's sister, Miss Marieta Weethee and Miss Marie Smith assisted in serving.

The newly-wedded couple left for Boulder Dam, Mrs. Baer wearing a teal blue pin-striped suit with burgundy accessories. They will reside in Santa Ana, where the bridegroom is with the Shell Oil company. Both he and Mrs. Baer are graduates of Santa Ana High school. She is president of Sigma Beta Chi sorority.

Hostess Plans Party For Miss Parker As Birthday Surprise

By enlisting the aid of Mrs. Walter Parker in her plans, Miss Anita Parker was able to carry out with shining success, a gala birthday surprise complimentary to Miss Dorothy Parker. The affair was an event of late the past week in the Clyde Potter home, 1070 West Fourth street.

Mrs. Parker contrived a reason for her daughter going over to Miss Potter's home with her escort, Jack Clark. In the meantime the other guests had gathered there, ready to call out their birthday greetings and then take part in a merry evening of dancing and games.

As climax to the gayety, Mrs. Potter assisted her daughter in serving birthday cake with ice cream and candy at a table very charming with its central arrangement of delicate pink and blue blossoms, and the light from blue tapers.

Many pretty gifts were showered on Miss Parker by her friends who included with the hostess, Miss Potter and Tom Engelman, Miss Barbara Tucker and Bob Pollard, Miss Grace Cook and Maurice Young, Miss Harriet Spicer and Brent Wahlberg, Miss Patsy Miller and Marvin Jacobs, Miss LaVon Gold and Conrad Hansen, and Jack Clark.

Mixing Bowl BY ANN MEREDITH

The problem of maintaining correct weight has been settled to the satisfaction of one business woman. She lives one mile from her office and walks in when the weather is good, but never does she walk before bed-time. If she plays bridge in the evening, and knows before hand, she cuts down on dinner so that she can afford to eat the food served by her hostess. If the bridge date is unexpected she takes nothing but coffee for the evening snack.

Her weight doesn't vary two pounds a year. She is well and beautifully slim without being scrawny.

If you weigh ten or fifteen pounds too much don't try the business woman's plan. First get rid of excess weight, then do as she does, and keep slim and fit. To help you slim down write today for our diet sheet with its choice of three popular diets (two of which are the Banana and Milk, and the Orange and Milk diets). Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPAGHETTI SUPPER

Spaghetti supper was served as a climactic feature of an informal party at which Miss Mary Knoche entertained this week in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Knoche, Irvine.

In the group with the hostess were the Misses Helen Andrews, Virginia Curry, Josephine Phlatery, Virginia Graves, Eloise Hickey, Betty Boone and Messrs. Pourring, Ralph Bradley, Roy Pether, Russell Heaney and Lucian Means.

Engaged Pair Honored With Bridal Gifts

Foretelling the wedding bells which will ring early in 1939 for Miss Margaret Jean Baxter and Thomas S. Weir, were the Christmas bells that chimed so pleasantly Saturday evening in the home of the William Kuhns, 526 North Artesia street.

For Mr. and Mrs. Kuhns had invited a group of friends as pre-nuptial compliment to Miss Baxter and her fiancé, and had planned a merry evening on the combined bridal and Yuletide theme. Pointsettias and coteaster lent holiday cheer to the scene where tables were placed for Chinese checker play. Miss Baxter and J. D. Watkins made high scores and were suitably rewarded, while consolation gift went to Mrs. H. B. Weir.

Shower features of the evening were introduced when a messenger called at the door for the betrothed young people. When they responded, they were presented with a big basket, which prettily wrapped packages contained all manner of charming things to be used in their future home.

When Mrs. Kuhns arranged tables for serving wedding-bell centered ice cream, cake and coffee, she used clusters of dainty rosebuds as centerpieces. For the special table where Miss Baxter and Mr. Weir were seated, a tiny bride and groom stood beneath an archway of smilax and rosebuds, flanked by pale pink tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuhns included on their guest list with the betrothed young people, their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baxter and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Weir, with the Gavin Baxters, the Roland Baxters, Miss Geraldine Weir and Mrs. Earl Tissue (sisters of Mr. Weir), also Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. David Carmichael, and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Kuhn, down from Glendale to spend the week-end with Mr. Kuhns' parents, the hosts.

Annual Holiday Party Enjoyed By U. D. C.

Following a long-established custom, members of Emma Sanson chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, gave their December meeting over to Yuletide cheer during the past week, when they were received in the beautiful home of Mrs. F. L. Sims, 1811 North Flower street.

Mrs. Sims was joined by Mrs. Roscoe G. Hewitt of this city and Mrs. Glenn Perkins of Yorba Linda, in planning the party. They introduced as guest speaker, Mrs. Kramer J. Rohlfisch, who gave a delightful word picture of the observance of Christmas in Germany. The speaker's husband, Kramer J. Rohlfisch, is a member of Santa Ana Junior college faculty, and the two young people spent many months in Germany while he was working for his degree. Her observance and enjoyment of the customs in a country which has added so immeasurably to observances adopted by the entire world, provided with music.

Appropriate decorations included the big Christmas tree with its brightly wrapped packages which were distributed in the exchange whereby each member gave and received a Christmas gift. As the afternoon's final charm, the hostesses served cakes, coffee and candies from a table where a big bowl of poinsettias gleamed.

Mrs. Tessmann Gives Review For Ebell Literary Group

Mrs. John Tessmann's review of "Fanny Kemble" by Margaret Armstrong was the delightful program feature which made an outstanding event of Ebell Modern Literature section's meeting Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Howard Rapp, 1816 Greenleaf street.

Hostesses were Mrs. Rapp, Mrs. Stanley Reinhaus, Mrs. Hugh Plumb and Mrs. Paul Ragan. Mrs. Reinhaus, leader, conducted the business session during plans for the new year were suggested. Members announced early summer by deciding to have a June picnic at the Reinhaus home on Balboa Island.

Mrs. Plumb, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Tessmann, whose review took up the greater part of the afternoon. Discussion of "Fanny Kemble" continued during the enjoyable tea hour, for which the dining room table was spread with a pretty cut-work cloth. A centerpiece of red berries and white tapers suggested the holiday mood. Mrs. Joseph Daniger poured tea which was served with cakes and other dainties.

Next meeting will be held January 13 in the home of Mrs. George Sattler, Panorama Heights.

Wedding Plans Occasion Gala Hospitalities

Since Miss Betty Wiswall and Dean Millen will be bride and bridegroom at December rites, they have been inspiring a number of pre-nuptial festivities, two of which were interesting events of the past week end. Sunday night brought a dinner party, while Saturday afternoon was marked by a lingerie shower for the bride-elect.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy, 715 West Cubbion street, was scene of last night's hospitality. Mr. and Mrs. Remington Mills of Palos Verdes and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stump Jr. of this city completed the intimate little group giving the affair for the engaged pair. The four young couples were seated at a large table made colorful with chrysanthemums and tapers in crystal holders. Miss Wiswall was complimented with a set of white Franciscan pottery as a gift of the Hardys, Mr. and Mrs. Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Stump.

Lingerie Event

Forming a charming hostess trio at Saturday's party for Miss Wiswall were Miss Florence Turner, Miss Lorene Thurlow and Mrs. Worth Babbitt, receiving in Miss Turner's home, 706 Spurgeon street. There were quantities of lovely flowers to add color to a setting on bridal motif.

Gardenias in bubble bowls centered tables at which luncheon was served early in the afternoon. Combination place and tally cards were of bridal design. Winning prizes for their high scores in contract bridge were Mrs. Ralph Cunningham and Mrs. William Jerome Jr., while Mrs. Garland C. Ross was first in auction bridge.

Miss Wiswall received the most exquisite of gifts from the group, which included her mother, Mrs. D. W. Scott on Long Beach, and Mesdames Q. L. Hardy, Ralph Cunningham, Don Plumb, George Freble, Kenneth Price, Ralph White, Robert Maypole, Joseph Irwin, William Jerome Jr. C. C. Ross, C. P. Miller, Ernest Stump Jr., Robert Guild, Joseph Winder, Nell Vandermast, Findlay Walker and the Misses Loretta Spangler, Elizabeth Millen, Mary Jean DuBois, Mrs. Jack Crowley of Fullerton; Mrs. Remington Mills, Palos Verdes; Mrs. Reginald Rust, Santa Maria; Mrs. Kenneth Knight, Los Angeles; Mrs. Leo West, Brea, with the three hostesses.

Mrs. Turner and Miss DuBois, mother and sister of Miss Turner, assisted in carrying out all party plans.

where information may be obtained regarding dinner price.

Bridge Play Follows Amber Circle's Luncheon

Amber Circle members took part in a holiday party Thursday afternoon when they met in Masonic temple for luncheon, exchange of gifts and other special features inspired by the approaching Yuletide season.

On the hostess committee were Leona Miller, Adelaide Lowe, Zeta Edmunds, Elizabeth Lewis, Amber Burke, Louella Blackburn, Dorothy Andrews, Vada Berry and Rosa Diers. They had arranged a colorful setting of red berries and candles at luncheon tables.

Gifts were distributed in the lounge, where a large Christmas tree was of special interest.

Sewing prize of the day was won by Elizabeth Lewis. Reward for their skill in cards were Elizabeth Fairfield and Alice White, auction bridge; Ida Goodwin and Cornelia Harwood, contract.

Garden Section Holds Christmas Celebration

Taking part in a holiday gift exchange and in other enjoyable features, members of Woman's club Garden section met last week in the home of Mrs. H. R. McVay, 1208 Louise street.

Mrs. E. A. Elwell, leader of the group, assisted in carrying out plans for the event, which opened with the serving of covered-dish luncheon at noon. There were gumdrop favors appointing a large table and a smaller one.

Talks on Christmas flower arrangements were given by Mrs. Raymond McMahon and Mrs. L. E. Tarbox. Group singing was enjoyed.

Present with Mrs. McVay were Mesdames Charles Hochen, G. V. Linsbard, Raymond McMahon, L. E. Tarbox, M. O. Wells, W. L. Harbert, C. R. Walter, G. J. Limbird, J. R. Jenkins and E. A. Elwell, members; with two guests, Mrs. Emma Walker of Oakland, who is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. McVay and Mrs. L. B. Collins, a member of Orange Woman's club.

Next meeting will be held January 12.

Those who attended were the Misses Lorraine Sweet, Maxine Wells, Florence Guthrie, Betty Stowe, Marian Adams, Shirley Galusha, Naomi Knipe, Elaine McReynolds, End Benton, Audrey Sattler, Gloria Kirchner, Lorraine Tarbox, Dorothy Davis, Katherine Eklund, an alumna, and Mrs. Grace Knipe club advisor.

In "Rich Man Poor Man" are Dorothy Skinner, Bette Carlson, Stanley Pearson, Jean Linsbard, Anne St. Clair, Jeanette Kessel, Doris Howell, Robert English, Naomi Knipe, Frank Trujillo and Nadine Covington.

Kitchen Party Is Compliment To Play Cast

Had they needed any other expression of the pleasure which they had provided for two successive audiences at the Community play, "Accent on Youth," members of the cast would have found it in the "kitchen party" at which they were feted Saturday night after the final curtain in Ebell clubhouse.

Still in costume and make-up, the cast repaired to Ebell kitchen, and with the director, Gladys Simpson Shafer and others whose work had helped make the play a success, received the congratulations of the many friends who lingered for the gay affair. The cast was honored, included Agnes Brady and John Colwell, whose principal roles of "Linda Brown" and "Stephen Gaye" had proven so smoothly capable; Lois Rees Auer, Harold H. Fish, James Hathcock, Joe Yocam, Julia Ann Hyde, Avery Johnson and James Doyle.

Of course the party guests included husbands or wives of cast members so that Mrs. Colwell, Mrs. Fish, Messrs. Leland Auer, C. W. Hyde Jr. and Burr Shafer were among those to shine in reflected glory. Mrs. Marshall Harnois, technical director, was accompanied by Mr. Harnois, and Victor Morrison, stage carpenter, by Mrs. Morrison, while among the innumerable guests were the William H. Spurgeons, the Harry L. Hansons, the J. Leslie Steffensons, the Crawford Nalles, Mrs. Charles Riggs, Miss Pearl Camblin, Juanita Wright Fletcher, Valeska Porter, Anna May Archer, Margaret Davies, Helen J. Johnson and many others who have worked in different fields of play producing.

Other guests included members of Laguna Beach Players, and of the Mad Hatters from Los Angeles. All enjoyed the gay informality of the affair, and the coffee and cakes served.

Saturday night's performance of "Accent on Youth" is not to end the play's run, according to present plans. For the cast has been asked to repeat the play at Junior college. Two of the principals, Miss Brady and Joe Yocam (who did such fine work in the part of "Dickie Reynolds," the juvenile lead), are former members of the student body and worked in various Jaycee plays under Ernest Crozier Phillips.

SERIAL STORY

SKI'S THE LIMIT BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SALLY BLAIR—heroine. She had everything that popularity could wish for, except...
DAN REYNOLDS—hero. He might have had Sally but while he was king on skis...
COREY PORTER was king of the social whirl. So... But go on with the story.

CHAPTER I

THERE was really no doubt as to who would be chosen Queen of the Ice Carnival. All bets were on Sally Blair. Sally was the prettiest, the most popular girl to be invited to the winter festival. Sally, herself, would have been more surprised if she had not been chosen than she was when the committee informed her she had been.

"As if anyone else could be Queen!" Corey Porter said with smug gratification. For Sally was Corey's girl. For the next few days, anyway.

It was no small feather in Sally's pretty cap to have been invited by Corey, either. Corey was president of his senior class, best fraternity on the campus, key-man. He was the only son of Peterson Porter, the steel magnate, no mean accomplishment in itself.

They made a handsome couple, Sally and Corey, swinging along, hand in hand, toward the practice hill where contestants would be getting in trim for the big meet the next day. Sally was as small and dark and sparkling as Corey was big and smooth and fair. More than one head turned to look at them, more than one remark signaled them out. "There goes Corey Porter, senior president, swell guy!" and, "That's Sally Blair. She was voted the most popular girl in her school and now she's to be Queen of the carnival!"

"Remember," Corey said, "you're my girl this week-end, Sally. Anyone who tried to break that up had just better watch his neck!" His look was so fierce, so possessive that Sally laughed.

"I guess no one will dare try," she said. "That is if he values his neck." But she knew that Corey would find plenty of competition. Wherever she went Sally always held court.

ROUNDING the bend they came upon a dazzlingly beautiful sight, wind-rippled snow, sparkling with myriad tiny diamonds, dark sentinels of pines marching up the mountain sides, a blue, blue sky spread like a canopy overhead, and crowds and crowds of brightly-costumed people.

"Isn't it lovely?" Sally exclaimed, and then, "Oh, Corey—look at that!" She caught his arm, standing breathless, watching a dark figure poised high above their heads, a figure that vortaged now with one swift graceful forward movement, poised for the geland-sprung, or jump, rose like a bird silhouetted against the sky, then skimmed down the trail of the slick steep slope, a cloud of snow like silvery spoke billowing behind, to come to a smooth, perfect stop with an elaborately executed "Christie."

"That was worth looking at," Corey admitted. "Perfect co-ordination and judgment, marvelous tempo and control."

"Who is he?" Sally demanded, still wide-eyed and breathless. Never had she seen anything to equal that performance in sheer grace and beauty.

Illustration by Henry G. Schlensker.

They were standing breathless, watching a dark figure poised high above their heads.

"Don't you know? That's Reynolds. He's out for the Olympics."

He'll make it, too, if he keeps up that form. He'll probably walk away with most of the honors tomorrow. At least, as one of his fraternity brothers, I can say he's just better, since we're backing him to stack up points for dear old Dartmouth."

"I'd like to meet him," Sally said. It suddenly seemed imperative that she should meet this young man. He was the center now of a noisy, enthusiastic crowd as Sally and Corey drew near.

COREY glanced at her, sideways; his blue eyes narrowed. "That wouldn't do you any good," he informed her, crisply. "Reynolds hasn't any time for women. Not even one as de-lovely and desirable as you, my sweet. Especially one of your kind, I might add."

"Are you afraid you couldn't wring his neck?" Sally laughed at him. "What do you mean by 'one of your kind'? I can't say I exactly relish that!"

"Hi there!"

"Alley-oop! It's about time you joined us!"

"Here comes the Queen, everybody! Make way! Let's have a royal welcome!"

Three long loud cheers rang out from lusty young throats as Sally responded with a mocking bow, flashing her smiles to the right and left. However, her dark eyes did not leave the figure of the tall, bare-headed boy, remaining silent and apart.

He, alone, had not raised his voice in welcome.

"Isn't someone going to introduce us?" Sally inquired. Her smile was just for him now. The Queen singling out a humble subject, bestowing a special favor. She would show Corey that he was mistaken. Sally had yet to meet the young man who would not have any time for her.

SOMEONE hastened to go through the formality of introductions. Sally extended her hand. Another gracious gesture. But one that this boy Reynolds accepted coldly. Then he inclined his head briefly, mumbled some small amenity, swung on his skis, glided away.

"What did I tell you?" Corey said at Sally's side. His handsome face wore a wide grin.

"Why, he's the rudest person I ever saw!" Sally's face was flushed, her dark eyes dangerously bright. Then she shrugged her dainty shoulders beneath the bulky warmth of her plaid parka, the hooded, wind-proof jacket of her smart skiing outfit, turned toward the others. "Imagine anyone who's so courageous on top of a mountain, running away at the foot of one! What a great big he-man our would-be Olympic champion is, after all! Did he think I would bite?"

This got a laugh, as she had hoped it would. Someone explained that Reynolds actually was afraid of "anything in skirts" for all his bravery and skill. "Though I'll bet Sally could tame him," Fudge Wylie, another of Corey's fraternity brothers, and another ardent admirer of Sally's, claimed.

"I'll take you up on that," Sally said coolly, with a little proud toss of her head. Her heart beat hard with anger and determination. "It's a double dare, Fudge. For Corey's in on it, too, I'm sure." She turned to him, her dark eyes dancing now. "Check, Corey, my lad?"

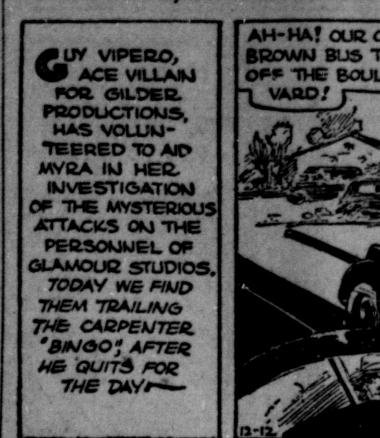

"Check," He nodded solemnly. That was their phrase to seal a bargain.

"Well then," Sally said, "if we're going to get started for the two-hour climb up that hill, suppose you fasten my ski-bindings a bit tighter and we'll get going."

But Sally was not thinking of skiing. Her pretty head already was outlining a campaign that promised more thrill and excitement than conquering a mountain

READER GIVES PROGRAM SOON

Mrs. Mae Geeting, well known reader and teacher of public speaking, will furnish a part of the program at the Christmas peace meeting at 7:30 p. m. Friday in the high school auditorium. Mrs. Geeting will read from "Ben-Hur," the story of the appearance of the angels to the shepherds of Judea on the night of the Nativity.

It is related that Lew Wallace, author of "Ben-Hur," who had been a general in the Civil war, was an agnostic and set out to write a story which would disprove the Biblical account of the birth of Jesus. The story continues that after much research General Wallace started to write and found that he had become convinced of the truth of the traditional Christmas story and could not disprove it.

Many people claim that the story which Mrs. Geeting will read is one of the grandest passages in all literature.

Aviation Story And 'Blondie' To Screen Soon

Said to be one of the most impressive dramas yet to come out of Hollywood, Warner Brothers' latest picture, "Down Patrol," will open at the Broadway on Sunday. The big cast in the picture is headed by such stars as Errol Flynn, George Brent, Claude Rains and Basil Rathbone.

The second attraction will be "Blondie," previewed recently at the Broadway theater before a delighted audience, which laughed heartily at the antics of the Bumsteads—Blondie, Dagwood and Baby Dumpling, the popular characters of Chic Young's famous comic strip.

Portraying Blondie is Penny Singleton, vivacious young musical comedy star. Dagwood's role is taken by Arthur Lake, an old hand at portraying comic strip characters, whose most notable role previously had been "Harold Teen." Seen as Baby Dumpling is four-year-old Larry Simms, a screen newcomer whose present major distinction is that he's the living itage of his comic strip counterpart.

Christian Science

This verse from the Psalms: "Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord; let thy loving kindness and thy truth continually preserve me," constituted the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "God the Preserver of Man" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist.

Among the Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon were these verses from John: "So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death. . . . Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way."

A selection from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health and Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the statement: "The divine Mind that made man maintains his own image and likeness. . . . All that really exists is the divine Mind and its idea, and in this Mind the entire being is found harmonious and eternal."

Flogging as a punishment was discontinued in the United States navy and on merchant vessels in 1850.

SERIAL STORY
LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE
COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOCK—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.
DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.
JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.
MARVEL HASTINGS—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

CHAPTER XXX

JUDY was trembling as she slipped behind the wheel of her car. Tears stung her eyes. Marvel and Dwight were going to have a baby. This would make right all the tortured little conflicts between them. Marvel would soften, she'd not be so selfish and demanding. The baby would absorb her time and emotion, and when Dwight was away at sea, her life would not be empty.

"Oh, I'm glad for them!" Judy thought, "Glad!" Like a thick fog lifting to let sunshine drench down on the dampened land, happiness was warming through her. All the doubts and fears she harbored in her heart so long were gone.

Jack, who had waited and trusted, was in the hospital. She must go to him. Right now! She glanced at her wrist watch. It was very late—nearly eleven o'clock. But she had to see him. Even if he were asleep. But he wouldn't be. He'd be sitting up, reading one of the books she had brought him.

The nurse in the hospital was doubtful. "We don't allow visitors so late."

"I must see him! I'm sure if Commander Sloane is about—"

"I'd have to telephone him, he's not here."

Judy waited impatiently while the nurse phoned. At last she was told, "You may go up. But I'm afraid he'll be asleep."

"I won't wake him if he is," said Judy. "Only, I'm so sure he won't be!"

THIS thing that had happened to her was so miraculous, she could not believe that Jack, who loved her, had not felt it, too. And when she stood in the door of his room and saw the pool of light from the lamp on the bedside stand, her heart seemed to give a shout of gladness. He was up!

"Jack!" She ran to him, and her lips brushed his. There was moisture on her cheek. He felt it, and said wonderingly, "Judy, what's happened? What brought you here?"

"Oh, darling, darling, I'm so happy. I'm alive! Alive, for the first time in months. Oh, Jack!" She took his hand. She sat on the side of the bed. He smiled at her.

"Jack, tell me, did you ever feel safe and sure, all the time—did you feel that it was all over?"

He looked at her and said gravely, "I've been worried, Judy. But I'm not now. Something's happened. You're different."

"I'm alive, I tell you! Oh, darling, I didn't want you to know, but I—I was unsure. And I—I did see Dwight."

"I know that," he said quietly.

"Jack!" Suddenly she felt the pain that he must have known, and she said, "Oh, my dear, I wouldn't have done it if I had realized."

"You had to get over it," he said. "Like being stage struck. You outgrew it. I was willing to wait."

SHE put her cheek against his.

"That's all you've been doing, endlessly, waiting... waiting... Waiting for me to get my sense back!" Her fingers touched his hair.

"But the waiting's over now," he said. "Isn't it?"

"Yes. Tonight Marvel came back. And I—I knew all the time that Dwight was hurt and lonely and that he still loved her. But I didn't want to believe it." Then she said, "I was fair to you, Jack. You must understand that. I told him right from the beginning—the first time I saw him, after we became engaged—that I was going to marry you."

"I never doubted that, Judy." His brown eyes were so clear.

She clung to him. "I haven't been worth your trust, Jack. You're so fine!"

"But you have been worth it," he smiled. "If you weren't the sweet, honest girl you are, you wouldn't be here now, would you?" And then his arms tightened around her. His mouth was warm and hungry on hers. "It's been such a long time, darling. Sometimes I thought I'd never have the patience to stick it out."

You're so wonderful. I was afraid he'd get you."

She lay very still. She said, "It was a dream. A mirage. I can't understand why I didn't know it before. But I just clung to it, I just kept it with me and nursed it—"

His understanding was sweet. She said, "And you're handsome, too. Aren't you?" She tried to laugh. "I shouldn't be here. No doubt the nurse is scandalized." She touched his cheek. "Marvel and Dwight are going to have a baby. Isn't that swell?"

He was really surprised at that. "How do you know?"

SHE confessed, "I eavesdropped."

Then she said, "We'll never speak of them again. When we see them, we'll pretend that nothing—"

Her voice broke. That wouldn't be easy. You couldn't dismiss the past just by making up your mind to forget. Possibly Jack would never forget the anguish she had caused him. And Marvel would never forget. And Judy... No, Judy would never really forget either.

He said tenderly, "That's part of living, Judy. Learning."

"I've learned. Truly I have."

There was a silence. They clung to each other's fingers. At last he said, "Suppose we don't wait a week after I get out? I can walk. I walked this afternoon. Maybe the doctor will let me go home tomorrow."

"Silly!" She smiled at him. "If you threaten to leave the hospital before the doctor says you're strong enough, you know what I'll do? I'll make the chaplain come right up here and marry us here! And then you'll have to do what I say!"

His eyes lighted, his big arms reached for her. "Judy!" After a while he said, "That's not a bad idea, Miss Alcock. Not a bad idea at all. I may hold you to that."

And he was kissing her again, until her heart was hammering madly and the room was spinning around her.

"I love you, Judy," he said huskily.

"I love you, too. Oh, darling, I love you so much!"

When the nurse peered in, a moment later, she said grumpily, "Hmmm! If you don't marry her now, Lieutenant Hanley, it just won't be respectable!"

Grace had been unusually quiet all afternoon and evening. Her mother wondered what was wrong, but said nothing, hoping that when the house was settled for the night they would have their usual friendly chat about the day's happenings.

No sooner had mother taken up her knitting than Grace asked, "Mother, why can't we have as good things to eat as the Rafks have? This afternoon Helen had some of the girls in and she told me they were going to have sandwiches from Trudy's. And ice cream from the hotel. We never have things like that!"

"No, we can't afford them, child. That would cost as much as we have for three days' food. We make our own ice cream, and you always say it's good."

"Oh, it is. Perfect. But the things they get are different. Stylish-like, you know. And they always have everything. They have a car and we haven't. All like that."

"That's true. We're saving for a house and your college education. And so as to have some money handy in case of sickness. If father was to be sick—We must be careful. You're not worrying about not having such things as cars and summers at the beaches? You have too much good sense. By and by, when you are out of college you will have a good salary, and you can have all the things you want then. And we will have more by that time, too. Just now we are building up our home and family!"

"I know, mother. You and father are just great. I don't want anything more than I have, really. But, I just feel queer. Mrs. Raff told me and Jessie's mother today, when she told us about the party, that she was going to move out of this neighborhood so that Peach Raff could have better social backgrounds. She said the people around here were all right, but they weren't the class she wanted her daughter to associate with, so she was going to move to the new development. Jessie's mother asked her if that was not going to be very expensive and she said yes, but she was borrowing two hundred dollars to move with. When she walked away a big hole in her stocking showed. Jessie's mother said she'd better keep the house she had and pay her bills and mend her clothes, instead of moving and sending her daughter to a private school. I'd like to go to a private school if you learned better there."

Mother counted stitches, thinking, "Should I tell the child? She's fifteen. She ought to understand something about this kind of thing, but I'd hate to teach her to gossip. This isn't gossip. It is an important idea for her to grasp." So she said, "You are old enough to know about using money. Tomorrow, when we are free of work, I'll go over the thing with you so you can know just how much money there is to do with, and what we do with it. We have to have your help. "It's a bad idea to live beyond your income. Grace, if I thought you'd ever live to borrow money to move into a classy neighborhood, or buy a car when you hadn't the money to pay the doctor, I'd turn over in my grave."

POLICE COURTESY

A police station is no place to go for a cup of tea. Life in the raw flows over the sergeant's desk and the average citizen seldom has an opportunity, for which he usually is grateful, to stand up at the desk and pass the time of day with the man who wears a badge and writes in the book.

But a brief mention of what happened in a police station in New York the other day prompts the observation that both the police and citizens interested in law and order might profit from more like this one.

A middle-aged gray-haired man stepped briskly into the station and deposited a package. It bore a legend. "On this day I am taking an opportunity to pay my respects to the world's finest, including the G-Men, in the best form I know."

The package contained 11 red roses.

FORTY MILES OF SMILES

Coast cities in Orange county are making plans for their annual Christmas decorations.

Sponsored by the Orange County Coast Association every town from Seal Beach to San Clemente will join in the program which was started several years ago by Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa.

Launched on a small scale the idea has grown to such proportions that it now ranks favorably with Christmas Tree Lane and Hollywood boulevard as outstanding places to visit during the holiday season.

Last year, it is estimated, more than 50,000 persons visited Orange county just to view the "Forty Miles of Smiles" along the beaches.

Each year judges make a tour of the 40 miles of beaches and award prizes to the communities and individuals for original and outstanding decorations.

The judges this year are Mayor Fred C. Rowland and Councilman William H. Penn of Santa Ana, and H. S. Gillen and Dana Swan of Long Beach.

If you never have made this Christmas tour, set aside one night this year and add yours to the "Forty Miles of Smiles."

SANTA AND BUSINESS MEN

While Santa Claus is sweating away at the North Pole with last minute preparations for what may be his busiest Christmas in many years, it is well to consider how the hearty old fellow has kept ahead of the procession of new ideas and new methods of toy making.

Probably the best quarter of a billion dollars spent in any country is that $250,000,000 spent annually for toys in the United States. It is a staggering sum, spent for the highest possible good—the giving of hours of happiness to others.

It is spent most judiciously by the mothers and fathers of the nation. Toys must be rugged, else they earn the contempt of Junior and his sister. They must be colorful, easy to clean and enduring. An old toy that has weathered the tempests of childhood is treasured more than a new, more attractive one. These desirable qualities have kept Santa humping for new ideas. He has also kept in mind that toys must be smooth-edged to prevent possibility of injury to their youthful owners.

For these mechanical improvements, father and mother join the youngsters in a great big hand for the old fellow and a promise of a long rest for him—after Christmas.

A REAL ACCOMPLISHMENT

A militant and never ending fight against the enormous toll in human life and property taken by traffic accidents has been one of the keystones of The Register editorial policy. In this we have been joined by the nation's press and the decline in the number of traffic fatalities, both locally and in the nation, has been a reward for efforts.

In view of The Register's attitude concerning traffic problems, we look with pleasure and satisfaction upon the activity of the Santa Ana Traffic Safety Commission during the past year.

Multitudinous detail has been handled by the Commission in performing its duties this year. Street corners have been checked so hazardous intersections may be made less dangerous. Studies and checks have been made to determine necessity of traffic lights, stop streets and other traffic regulations.

Officers guarding the intersections near schools of the city have been investigated to determine if their work was satisfactory. Members of the city police department have been nudged by the ever-vigilant members of the Commission at times when it appeared there was laxity in the department.

Outstanding in the work this year were the written and oral essay contests, sponsored by the Commission and conducted by the city schools, that reached their culmination last week. Because of this contest, more than 1400 school children of the city have had the problem of traffic safety brought vividly to their minds.

Realizing the value of the Commission to the community, The Register has given wide publicity to the activity of the group and is proud to be able to publish the three prize-winning essays. To the members of the Commission and to the members of the school system who made possible the presentation of the program to the children, we extend heartiest congratulations and pledge ourselves to continue assisting the program during the coming year.

WHY SO IMPATIENT?

A friendly critic of mine contends that I would accomplish more if I were not so impatient and so emphatic in my criticisms.

When I see struggling business men getting poorer and poorer;

When I see men who have saved in the past losing their savings;

When I see honest, conscientious workers unable to secure jobs;

When I see unselfish, patriotic citizens being obliged to work for much less than they should receive;

When I see the farmer working so hard for so little;

When I see the youth of the land being taught Pagan doctrines;

When I see the liberty for which our forefathers fought being surrendered;

When I see young men and young women who should be married and rearing a family not able to because of economic conditions;

When I see "holier than thou" prattlers satisfying their ego and vanity and living on the fat of the land by spreading doctrines that bring these conditions about, it is extremely difficult if one has any conscience at all to be patient with this kind of human beings. It is hard for me to understand how anybody who is interested in the well being of the great mass of our people can be patient and tactful and indifferent when he sees these conditions taking place and strongly believes that he sees the causes that are bringing these conditions about. Especially is it difficult for him to be patient when all his readings of history of the doers of the ages confirm his beliefs.

This column has no thought of being dogmatic because if any individual, who thinks the writer is too emphatic, can point out any inconsistency or any theory that is advocated that will not work for the general welfare, they are always invited and urged to do so.

About all we can do is to try to get people to realize a few of the fundamental principles that go to build character which always has resulted in good government. So I ask the readers to pardon the apparent impatience and use the columns of this paper to help correct any statements that might appear in this column that are unsound.

INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY

Nowadays, we hear considerable about industrial democracy. The people who use this term invariably do not know that to the degree we approach free enterprise do we have industrial democracy.

Anytime any man buys anything or any service, he is voting that this man or this firm is giving better service or more for the money than any of his competitors. His buying is a vote. He has constantly a choice of voting everytime he buys. This is real industrial democracy.

The proposed method of having the people vote once ever so often for people who will produce different kinds of commodities and services would be in reality killing industrial democracy. It would be simply coercion of the few by the many.

And the reason we are having the trouble in industrial democracy is because of the interference of political democracy. It is because political democracy has made laws that destroyed a man's rights to buy or sell his services and what he produces to the world's best bidder.

Yet, these "holier than thou-ers" who "say but do not, and whose works are for to be seen by men," contend that we can improve the lot of man by turning the country over to them to manage.

INFLUENCE OF PUBLIC OPINION

We are inclined to believe that our legislators are very important. They might be much more important under an aristocracy or a monarchy, but under a democracy, where the majority rules, the most important people are those who influence public opinion. The legislators can do little except follow public opinion.

Thus, we must place the blame of our present condition on those people who have had a tendency to influence public opinion, such as newspaper publishers, educators, churches, individual citizens, writers of books, publishers of magazines and radio speakers. These people should hang their heads in shame for the condition into which they have led the country.

The legislative body will enact any laws that public opinion demands.

work for his father and his participation in the White House manipulation of primaries and elections. Upon his recovery he took leave supposed to be temporary, of the secretarial job and went west.

It is now announced that James has entered the moving picture business as vice president of Sam Goldwyn, Inc. This business is in trouble with the government again. Mr. Jackson and Mr. Arnold of the department of justice are after it and it has a top place on the list of monopolies to be liquidated or brought under New Deal bureaucratic control.

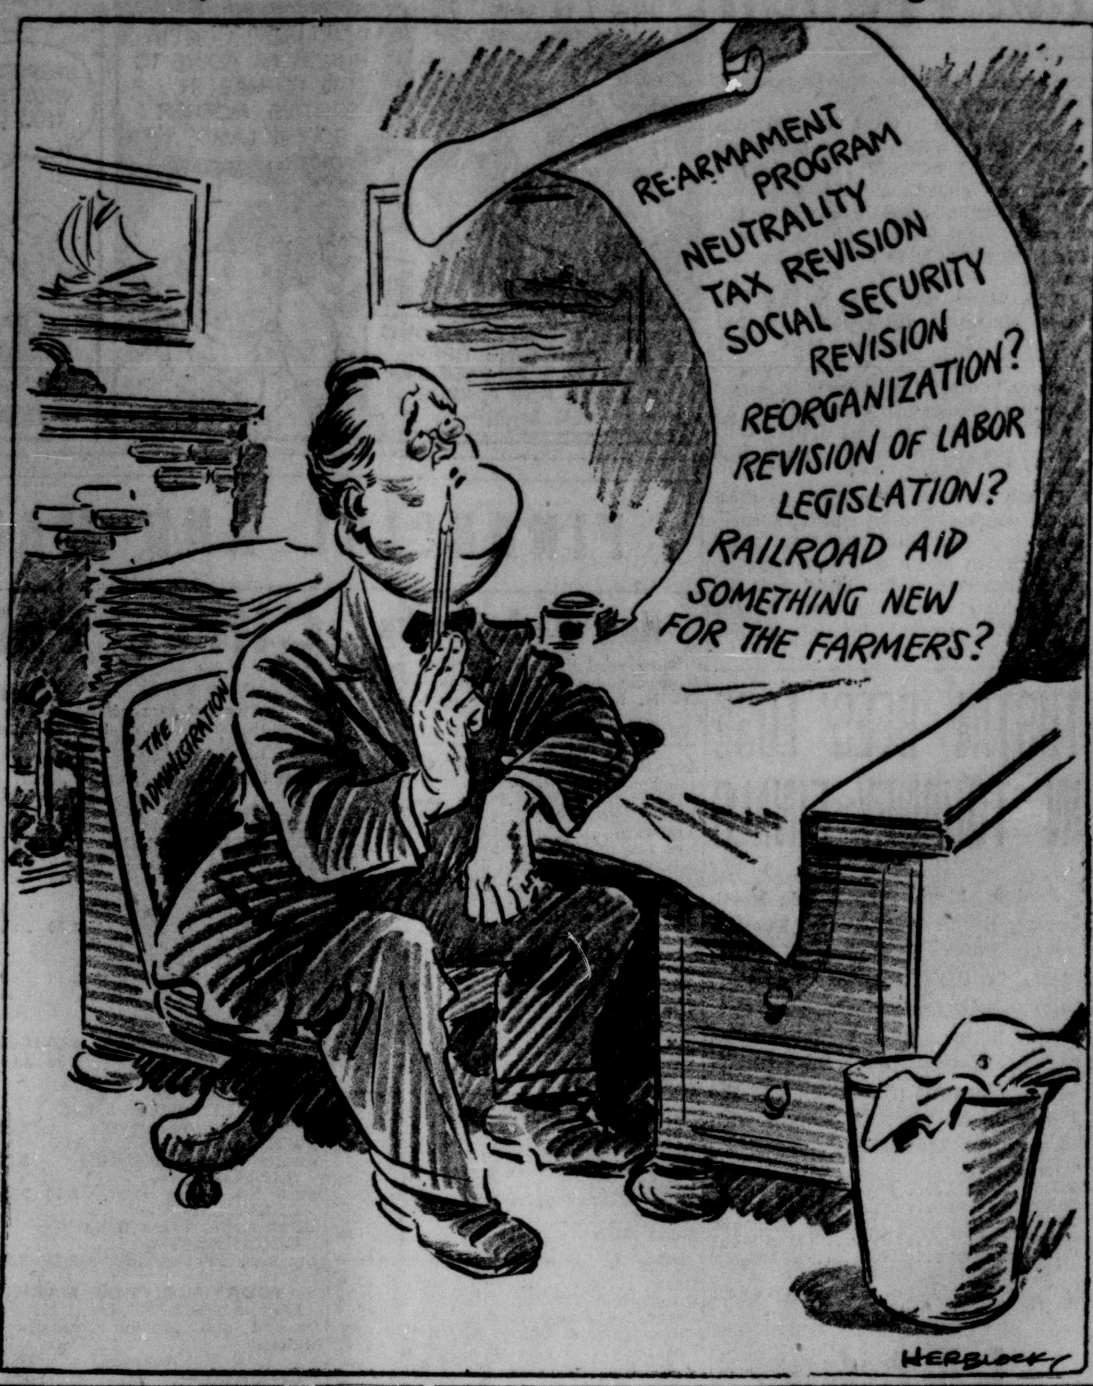

Hollywood has primitive instincts. Long ago, when it was more afraid of censorship than it is now, it hired Will Hays, former Republican postmaster general and head of the Republican national organization, to square it with authorities who otherwise might get rough. Mr. Hays was supposed to be a well qualified trouble shooter and also endowed with a recognized reputation as a family man to lead the timid movie producers through any witch wood of political frightfulness.

The new troubles may prove to be a bit out of Mr. Hays' line. He can defend the purity of the movies, but when the New Deal department of justice gets after them as corporations controlled by the cold blooded few he is passe. Elliott Roosevelt went into radio, which also is exposed to governmental interference, and Jimmie goes into the movies. The simple minded people of Hollywood would naturally think that in trouble the thing to do was to hire somebody who had influence where it counts most. They no doubt believe that in signing Jimmie up they have bought a piece of the New Deal and will have an advocate who can talk in the White House.

Apparently it isn't the simplest thing in the world to be a member of the White House family. A scrupulous regard for the finest political proprieties would restrain the members from any appearance which possibly could carry a suspicion of undue influence through family connections. It might be hard to make decisions based upon such sensitiveness, but a Spartan regard for ethics would accept the sacrifices. No self-denying ordinance has been given much consideration for the last four or five years. The members of the President's family have gravitated to lucrative positions where the inference would be that the value of the services would be in part political. That inference in the case of James and the movie business is unescapable.

The family has never denied itself any opportunity to use the byproducts of public life. If Jimmie doesn't know why he is in the movies Hollywood does.

Register Clearing House

"It is for each to utter that which he sincerely believes to be true, and add his unit of influence to all other units of influence, and let the results work themselves out."—Spencer. Contributors are urged to confine their articles to 300 words.

Fellow Citizens: Nature utilizes that owned a plot of ground that was needed to complete a modern school. If the majority who would benefit by the erection of the school were to allow him to say "I refuse to sell this ground, even at a fair and reasonable price" then he would have established his totalitarian policy over the great majority.

He would be going directly against the wishes of the people in whole, denying them the right to live their lives freely so that one individual may be benefited.

Is this Christianity? To take from the "abundant life" of the mass to benefit one person?

In many of your articles you contend that this is Christianity. You say that the amassing of capital will be of direct benefit to the workers producing that capital. So may it be, but I think that a more direct method of approach might be used. I think it far more logical to give the more abundant life to the first, and receive less capital in return than to build up a huge reserve to enable, by the grace of God, to give it to them after that is accomplished.

Finland is a country that enacts the policies I advocate. Greece, Sweden, Norway—are others of the world's few common democracies. Here no one is either very rich, nor very poor. The workers and employer alike work for the common good of the masses—the great majority—not for the benefit of single individuals. The workers are organized as are the employers.

Common meeting grounds, and common problems give them a firm foundation to establish their creeds to provide the best possible standards for the majority. It is a majority ruling the majority, and the black sheep, or individual, must follow in order that most of the people will benefit. This is my idea of a Christian endeavor.

The subject is so thoroughly adapted to the present economic problems involving the many angles and phases of all that enter into the welfare of everyone that to attempt to cover it all in the Clearing House would take more space than the publisher would want to allow.

The claims I have made are conservatives as Mr. Phillips will realize when he has all the "details" in his own mind. Of course there is no source of real information about the plan outside of the Townsend organization as Mr. Phillips can readily understand because only cursory attention is given to it elsewhere and much of that is of little or no value. If he will read the Townsend Weekly and other literature published by them at 450 E. Ohio street, Chicago, he will thus obtain accurate, valuable information enough to satisfy any reasonable person, who really desires to know the truth.

How does Mr. Phillips imagine the Townsend organization could be "held together" except "by the people who contribute and the hope of reward promised by the leader"? He would hardly expect the "vested interests" would give any help.

As for me "feeling a sort of superior person and gloating over" his "and other's ignorance" that is contrary to my nature as Mr. Phillips would realize if he were acquainted with me.

W. F. ROCKWELL

Editor Register: Recently I read an article in the Register explaining the coercion and intimidation that is taught in the public schools system under the guise of majority rule—that such an idea is pagan, un-Christian, and harmful even to the majority.

I cannot agree. Admittedly not of unusual intelligence, nor one of the "thinkers," I believe I have enough common sense to see what is the feasible and logical solution to many common problems. I think majority rule is one of the solutions.

Without majority rule, groups, or incorporated groups would soon be under the rule of either a single or various petty dictators. For instance, the man you mentioned

Death Rate From Diabetes Has Declined At Most Ages

The death rates from diabetes seem to be increasing in most countries. The reasons are many. Most important is the fact that more people are living longer than people used to live. When cognizance is taken of this factor, the increase in the death rates from diabetes disappears entirely. Thus the rates of death from diabetes have declined at most ages and are found to be increasing among men only after 65 years of age. Strict attention to the ailment will add many useful years to the average life.

Whenever sugar is found in the urine, one must be suspicious that the condition is diabetes. The modern treatment of diabetes involves the use of diet and insulin—not only the old insulin but also the new type of insulin, which is called protamine zinc insulin. The chief advantage of protamine zinc insulin is its usefulness in mild cases, and the fact that it brings the patient closer to normal living, because usually it needs to be taken only once a day.

Diet is still an integral part of the treatment of diabetes. Control of the diet need not be a highly complicated or complex matter. The diabetic diet is simple. As pointed out by Dr. E. P. Joslin, the doctor merely needs to learn the patient's usual diet, and then to make the simple adjustments that are necessary to meet the special needs of his condition.

Patients with diabetes frequently do not die of diabetes itself, but rather of the serious complications. The most serious complication of diabetes is diabetic coma in which the patient becomes unconscious and dies unless immediate treatment is given. The patient must learn first of all to prevent the onset of coma by learning exactly what to do if he feels suddenly weak. The first step is the giving of insulin, and the second step is the giving of enough fluids and salt, but obviously any patient who has gone into a coma should be taken immediately to a hospital. In the hospital everything for determining the extent and character of his condition is available.

Once there were two classes of people particularly who died of diabetes; namely, children and prospective mothers. Girls with diabetes seldom lived long enough to get married and have children. If they did, they were unable to carry the child to the time of birth. Today the treatment of children makes it possible for young women with diabetes to grow older. Moreover, women who develop diabetes later in life can now have children if they are under suitable care so that their condition is constantly under control.

The chief dangers from diabetes are, of course, surgical complications, as represented by gangrene and infections of the skin. The importance of care of the skin, and particularly of the feet has been stressed so often that every person with diabetes ought to be aware of the dangers. The feet should be washed daily. Dry skin and nails must be softened and there should be periods of rest for the feet. When new shoes are worn they should be broken in slowly. The feet of the diabetic person should be examined at least once each week so as to catch the slightest difficulties at the earliest possible moment. The circulation of the blood in the feet must be given attention.

Every injury or abrasion of the skin must be suitably treated at the earliest possible moment. Here it may be necessary to avoid the use of severe antiseptics, because they may do as much damage as good.

To this me, is Christianity, not Paganism.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

World Copyright 1938 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—This country is in for some hellibitus. For the benefit of those who may have come in late on the American political scene, this is a cuss word which has lately come up from Uvalde, Texas. As a matter of fact, it is not really a cuss word. It must be an expletive or a punctuation mark. The vice president in his conversations with those statesmen and friends who have found his hide-out there lately, has been saying: "Hellibitus, I think this way" or "Hellibitus, what do you think?"

Political etymologists have never heard this one before, and are inclined to trace it back beyond the Greek to Garner's early service as Democratic leader of the house. The Republicans then were in control. Garner's trick was to goad the Republicans to the point (as he describes it) that they would yell "hell-she-bites."

Apparently, Mr. Garner read the last election returns, even though he went to bed early that night. Apparently also, this is to be the Democratic program of the coming session of congress which has generally been assumed to be under Mr. Garner's leadership.

The signs suggest Mr. Roosevelt is going to be more amiable about reorganization.

His meeting with the Brownlow committee has been widely publicized, but publicity has been utterly lacking about some other more important meetings which the Brownlow committee has been holding with members of congress who resisted the extent of Mr. Roosevelt's program last time.

A basis for agreement has been laid. Mr. Roosevelt need only accept one amendment, that of Senator Wheeler requiring Presidential reorganizations to be approved by the congress.

Mr. Roosevelt has been conciliatory in the conferences he has held so far. He even told his press conference the other day that the final determination of the details rested with congress. A year ago he was saying the legislative branch should approve his recommendations.

General assumption: he will generalize his reorganization convictions in his forthcoming message, thereby permitting congress to enact a satisfactory substitute. Reorganization legislation is sure and it is likewise certain that it will not be enacted on the basis proposed last time involving charges of dictatorship.

Most of Washington wants to know what Mr. Garner, the V.P., is going to do (inasmuch as he is the executive officer of congress, convening now only three weeks away.) No one knows. If Mr. Garner has any views about coming legislation, he has failed to confide them to those to whom he usually confides his views.

The suggestion is warranted that he is looking forward to a reconciliation, and a unification of ideals which will cause unification of the Democratic party at the coming session of congress.

Stories that Mr. Garner looks sneeringly upon suggestions of cooperation with the Republicans are substantiated by every source that is worthwhile.

Mr. Gallup's poll says the 1-2-3 contenders for the Democratic Presidential nomination are Garner, Hull and Farley. Of the three, Washington would today bet on Farley. A year ago he would have been twentieth or more in the list of prospects.

Today there is a recognition here of the fact that he controls the organization, and no one can be nominated without his support. It is a technical situation.

The delegations in the various states, made up as they are of the current Democratic leaders in the various states, are more susceptible to the Farley influence than to the White House influence. Their allegiance is on a personal basis.

No one believes that the situation will get down to a test of those two strengths, Roosevelt versus Farley, but everyone recognizes the possibility, which is a controlling influence, on current politics.

The round table here thinks Hull cannot quite make it. His aspirations are the accepted, enthusiastic ideals of everyone who thinks about foreign affairs, but those who look ahead have a vague suspicion it will be different two years from now. The failures of Chinese, British and perhaps even South American policies will then be more self-evident.

If you wanted a long-range bet, the boys would take one to 20 on Farley, one to 40 on Hull, and nothing else.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.— It would be a pious idea to take a copy of the Monroe Doctrine and read it again by the red glare of the Franco-Italian trouble. The people of this country would then discover that a principle which Americans have regarded as a protection against intrusion in this hemisphere by the ever-warring and insatiable nations of the Old World puts it up to the Americans to protect the British and French possessions in the proscribed area. To be sure, emergency expediency by which this nation could escape a fight with Italy and Germany in defense of the French and British islands off our coast, French and British Guiana and British Honduras. But would we use it? Probably not, because these outposts in the hands of their present owners are harmless to us in the long-accustomed state of our relations, but in the possession of Italy and Germany would be guns pressed against our ribs by warlike powers which hate the United States and its form of government.

The Monroe Doctrine says that "the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers."

Obviously, the French and British outposts in this half of the world, and at that time Cuba, had not assumed a free and independent condition, and the French and British colonies have not done so yet. These were exceptions, but there is an implied promise by this country to prevent the capture or conveyance of these possessions, and if war comes between Italy and France as a starter, spreading, perhaps, to Germany and Britain, we would have the greatest interest in defending them?

In the event of their capture by the nations of the axis or their cession to those nations by the terms of the peace Italy and Germany assuredly would colonize them, and not only that but would fortify them, garrison them and create bases for bombers and submarines and propaganda in a zone of the world where this country has been and, for its own good, must continue to be unchallenged.

Even still these lapses will not be deemed to have abrogated the main purpose of the Monroe Doctrine, to prevent intrusion and colonization by European powers in this hemisphere after 1823, and the introduction of a system dangerous to our peace and safety. The toleration of a Nazi-Fascist stronghold in Nassau, for example, hardly more than a hour by plane from Miami, would destroy the Monroe Doctrine utterly and threaten the American system of government achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure and matured by the wisdom of the most enlightened citizens.

"We owe it to candor to declare that any attempt to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere is dangerous to our peace and safety," the Monroe Doctrine says. "With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we shall not interfere."

"The system" which the United States undertook to exclude as dangerous to our peace and safety was not Nazi-Fascism but, like Nazi-Fascism, it was "essentially different from that of America," to the defense of which "this whole nation is devoted."

There have been a couple of trifling irregularities on this country's part in the observance of the Doctrine, notably when we did interfere with the existing colonies of Spain and did intrude in a war between European powers.

Still even these lapses will not be deemed to have abrogated the main purpose of the Monroe Doctrine, to prevent intrusion and colonization by European powers in this hemisphere after 1823, and the introduction of a system dangerous to our peace and safety. The toleration of a Nazi-Fascist stronghold in Nassau, for example, hardly more than a hour by plane from Miami, would destroy the Monroe Doctrine utterly and threaten the American system of government achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure and matured by the wisdom of the most enlightened citizens.

worn they should be broken in slowly. The feet of the diabetic person should be examined at least once each week so as to catch the slightest difficulties at the earliest possible moment. The circulation of the blood in the feet must be given attention.

Every injury or abrasion of the skin must be suitably treated at the earliest possible moment. Here it may be necessary to avoid the use of severe antiseptics, because they may do as much damage as good.

never did seem as big as that bill Charley handed me."

It was hard to believe, looking at the McLarin of today, that he went through 125 fights against the toughest boys in several classes. Not a mark on him of any sort. A smooth baby face, untouched ears, a clear, normal voice, and a mind unclouded by punches. Now, comfortably retired, and with golf as his only sport, he doesn't regret his fighting days, but he is glad they are finished.

"It's a tough business, even when you are good enough to be a champion," Jimmy said. "Tough people, tough work, and lawdy knows what would have happened to me if I hadn't 'Pop' Foster to run things for me. A great man, Pop. Almost the greatest, I reckon. They always thought he was a little funny—in New York, I mean—but he never did get light mixed with wrong, and he never was afraid of anything."

I mentioned Armstrong again. "He has two things," Jimmy said. "A great left, and all the stamina in the world. Sam Langford used to say that if you keep 'em on their heels they'll never hurt you. That's what Henry does. He keeps moving forward. He has the strength to do that. No man over hurt you going backwards. It isn't natural for a man to move backwards. He is awkward when he is doing it. Armstrong keeps all his opponents moving that way. He can box, too. Mixes up his punches. Rolls. And he can fight all night. You know what would have happened to a terrific fighter? Armstrong as he is today against Tony Canzoneri when he was at his best. Two bullies. Two sharp hitters. Two game guys. Two cocky guys. I would have liked to have seen it."

"How about yourself in there with Armstrong?" I asked. "We never could have gotten together," Jimmy said. "I weighed too much for him. But it would have been fun, had we ever gotten together."

Jimmy, a ten handicap player, laid a brassie shot on a far-away green, and boxing was forgotten for golf.

eight years younger than August Rodney Mancuso.

Up until the past season, he appeared to be one of the brightest of the newer crop of backstops and a rousing batsman.

Rescued from the St. Louis Cardinal Chain gang, the Lima, N. Y. lad got into 76 games in 1935, and caught more than half of the Whigley's engagements in 1936-37, when he hit .307 and .301. Gabby Hartnett never missed at all.

O'Dea slumped to .263 last season, which wouldn't have been so bad had not his general work become so bad that he had to be benched in favor of Bob Garbarik. Mancuso leaves the Cubs with two veteran catchers. He is 33 and has been playing baseball 13 years. This hasn't dimmed his batting eye, however. He hit .348 in 52 games last season.

Terry and Mancuso had arguments about the handling of giant pitchers in the 1937 world series. Mancuso held out last spring, and was shoved around by Terry until toward the end of the campaign . . . when he was badly needed as the result of Harry Danning pulling up lame.

Mancuso knows all there is to know about catching, and has a remarkable arm.

There is a good chance that the change of scenery will bring all six athletes back to something approaching their peak form.

The deal at least stir up a little excitement . . . gives the customers something to talk about.

Bruins Refuse To Criticize
Official for Tie

LOS ANGELES—(UP)—Football fans here today were rehearsing the football "swan song" of Coach William H. Spaulding, whose 32-year career officially ended last Saturday when his U. C. L. A. team tied Oregon State college, 6 to 6, in a hectic game.

Several times Lady Luck could have swung victory to U. C. L. A., which tried desperately to win "Bill's last game," but each time the lady looked out the window.

Most spectacular of the game's miscues came in the fourth quarter when Izzy Cantor, U. C. L. A. halfback, got the ball on his own 16-yard line on a lateral pass. Cantor made a brilliant, snaky run to his own 45-yard line and apparently was free for a touchdown when Referee Tom Fitzdown of Oakland cut across Cantor's path and spilled him.

After the game, Cantor refused to blame the official for loss of the game.

"I guess he was trying to get out of my way and I know I was trying to dodge him," Cantor said.

However, I zigged when I should have zagged and the next I knew Fitzpatrick and I collided."

Oregon State scored in the first minute of the game after Halfback Harold Higgins caught the opening kickoff and sprinted 85 yards to the U. C. L. A. five-yard line. Two plays later Higgins plunged for the touchdown.

PARIS—(UP)—It is, Parisians agreed today, a combination of rugby, soccer, wrestling and bull fighting and very much like a collision between an automobile and a bus—much too brutal for the French taste.

They were talking, and with gestures, about the first real American football game ever played in Paris. The game was played by two teams brought over by Jimmy Crowley, Fordham university coach. His all-stars beat the New Yorkers 25-14 Saturday and the New Yorkers turned the tables yesterday to the tune of 36-25.

The 2000 fans got their first taste of football decided it was no game for the French. They considered the huddle the best part of the game.

"It is by far the most interesting part of the game," said a prominent Parisian sports writer. "It is apparent they gather to cheer, in the spirit of true sportsmanship, before each play."

The "expert" went on to describe the difficulty experienced by a crowd of 2000 in deciding when to cheer. After watching the "cheering" huddle a while, the crowd joined in the chorus, making it impossible to hear the signal-caller.

The vigor with which the two lines charged intrigued another writer. He reported that "the field was strewn with wounded players," and the "face making" between charges was regarded as an indication of mutual dislike that made the game seem "more like war than sport."

Other writers described football as "a combination of rugby, soccer, wrestling and bull fighting" and "very much like a collision between an automobile and a bus," but the "Football would be too brutal for the French taste."

vincing if he used his real name—Charles Edward Pratt. Hope I'm not irreverent, but studio cops, with their air of infallibility, always make me think of St. Peter guarding the Pealy Gates. Highlights from coming attractions: Fred MacMurray helping Madeleine Carroll take a bath in "Cafe Society." Director Mike Curtiz has a new nickname for Errol Flynn that fits to a "T"—it's "Lucky-Go-Damn."

It's fascinating to watch Barbara Stanwyck toss back a very lucky look of hair as she talks. I never see Mischka Auer without thinking of cold borsch—and vice versa. There's no boy problem with Deanna Durbin—to "date" she hasn't shown the least inclination. Charles Boyer always looks as though he felt himself a gentleman thrown into the company of a bunch of beachcombers. Study in contrasts: Ray Francis and Lupe Vélez—the iceberg and the fire-cracker.

For a study in pulchritude, I like to watch the three Lane sisters together. Cited for the Croix de Merite: Jack Mulhall—one fallen star who never brags about his past brilliance. Wonder if Akim Tamiroff can do those Russia sitting-dance dances? It isn't true that Cesar Romero was born in white tie and tails—but I'll admit he looks as though it might have been. There's a clerk in a Boulevard department store who is a perfect double for Marie Wilson—litters and all. In a description of Joan Crawford: an inferiority complex wrapped in the cellophane of stardom.

Tour the stages at Twentieth Century-Fox and your guide is sure to call your attention to Count Philippe D'Esco. He's only a property man, a movie underling, but he rates as a character for he gives his tasks just the touch of swank that suits his title, which, by the way is authentic. No one on the set will ever forget the first day he worked with Director Gregory Raskin, who dared to address him as "Hey, you Phil." "My family called me 'Count,'" the prop man said, with a dignity that would have made Herbert Marshal, by comparison, look like a cockney. "You may do the same."

For the new Bobbie Breckenpierre, the fish stalls of San Francisco's most famous wharf have been reproduced faithfully—set workers, for hot weather and hot lights have a disastrous effect when combined with two or three tons of very dead fish. Saturday, the stench became so bad that the director had to order the stage doors thrown open between scenes to admit a rush of fresh air. And here's the payoff: Just as the doors were opened, a young studio guide came along with a party of visitors. "What's that terrible odor in there they demanded. 'Why,' said the guide, 'They're making 'Fisherman's Wharf.' That's the new Bobbie Breckenpierre, you know."

Bing Crosby tells about taking one of our big-shot producers to see a play produced by the Federal Theatre Project. Coming out of the theater, he asked the biggie what he thought of the show. "It looks to me," said the producer, thoughtfully, "like they've got the wrong actors on relief."

Filipinos Shun
Manila's First
Modern Flats

MANILA, P. I. (UP)—President Manuel L. Quizon is seeking to overcome, by setting a personal example, the reluctance of Filipino workers to move into a modern tenement house built here by the government.

The Philippine Commonwealth president personally filed application to lease one of the apartments for a month. The application was granted and the president paid $7.50 rent for the month.

After signing the lease, the president "occupied" the apartment for a brief rest before returning to Malacanang, the presidential palace.

"I guess he was trying to get out of my way and I know I was trying to dodge him," Cantor said.

However, I zigged when I should have zagged and the next I knew Fitzpatrick and I collided."

LATE NEWS FROM ORANGE

PLAZA LIGHTS OPEN SEASON

ORANGE, Dec. 12.—Formal opening of the Christmas season here was brought about Saturday at 5:30 p. m. when Christmas lights shone from the plaza and along the streets intersecting it. The star pin at the east entrance of the plaza is the official Christmas tree while trees in the corner of the square are small replicas of the giant pine.

A great white star has shone for many Christmas seasons at the west entrance and is fastened to one of the tall palm trees. The plaza is circled with shining colored lights on Christmas trees festooned to lampposts, and similar trees mark both sides of Chapman avenue and Glassell street leading into the square.

In addition to the thousands of colored lights, the electric fountain with its changing lights add unusual beauty to the lighting effects.

Women's Society Is Told Of Trip

ORANGE, Dec. 12.—Meeting recently at Spworth hall members of the Women's Aid society of the First Methodist church heard an interesting account of a motor trip taken by Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hemphill and told by the latter. The subject of the talk was "Buildings Seen Enroute," conforming to the topic of the year, "Buildings."

Mrs. J. R. Kenyon presided and the treasurer, Mrs. M. V. Allen, announced that receipts from the bazaar November 30 were $268.21. The sum of $327.25 is now in the treasury, it was reported. Circles are to meet for Christmas parties December 20, Miss Jeanette Draper and Miss Elsie Parsons sang "Silent Night" and Mrs. J. B. Kilgore was at the piano for group singing led by Mrs. Nettie Rozell.

Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Flora Campbell.

SCHOOL STUDENTS PRESENT CHRISTMAS VESPER SERVICE

ORANGE, Dec. 12.—The auditorium of Orange Union High school was crowded yesterday afternoon for the annual Christmas vesper service, presented by the elementary and intermediate school children of Orange public schools.

A chorus of more than 100 school children in all scarlet capes, entered from the west door as Miss Edith Watson played "O Come All Ye Faithful" at the organ. This was followed by the carol, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." Betty Hartman, reader, told the Christmas story.

Tableaux and carols formed most of the program, with an impressive rendition of "Bring a Torch, Jeanette Isabella," by the Eighth Grade Girls' Glee club, which was seated in the balcony. Carols and tableaux were "The First Noel," "We Three Kings," "Silent Night," "Joy to the World," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Songs were 'Canticum de Noel,' 'Under the Stars,' 'Hark the Herald Angels Sing' and 'Goodnight.'"

In the tableaux casts were Glenn Gray, Robert Smart, Merrill Shepherd, Junior Kilgore, Leslie Harrison, Everett Tuck, shepherd; Joanne Peterson, Betty Jean Barger, Nell Marie Schildmeyer, Mary Ann Bowman, Margaret McQuillin, Margorie Kinney, angels; David Beck, Warren McGill and Robert Postolles, king who sing; Ronald Hanson, Earl Horton and Jimmy Green, kings in tableau; "Mary," Margaret Carpenter, and "Joseph," Raymond Curry. Orange school teachers, headed by Miss Rachel Williams, trained the pupils.

Benefit Affair Held For W. R. C.

ORANGE, Dec. 12.—The attractive ranch home of Mrs. Minnie Squier on 101 highway was beautifully decorated for the benefit card party given by members of the Orange W. R. C. to raise funds for their charity work. The affair took the form of a 1 o'clock dessert luncheon, with gingerbread, whipped cream and coffee served at card tables.

Little vases of bronze baby chrysanthemums centered the tables and miniature turkeys made by Mrs. Squier were favors. Yellow baskets of candy corn marked each place. Hostesses were Mrs. Grace Deck and Mrs. Minnie Heuck.

When card play began tallies carried out the Christmas theme, with four designs of Christmas seals as decoration. Prizes were won by Mrs. Cora E. Schooley, Mrs. Edith Richardson and Mrs. Alice Tolhurst, in bridge; Mrs. Hattie Buhrman in "500" and Mrs. Estelle Campbell, the door prize.

WIRELESS SUBDUED 37 YEARS AGO TODAY

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Register)—Just thirty-seven years ago today, a slender young Italian, Guglielmo Marconi, sat huddled over a set of queer looking instruments in an old barracks near St. John's, Newfoundland. Suddenly, after minutes of tense waiting, three low buzzes or dots broke the silence. It was a momentous occasion; for the Atlantic had been conquered by wireless telegraphy. "Most Significant"

"That day in 1901 is one of the most significant dates in history," David Samoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America and for many years an intimate friend of Marconi, said yesterday. "The success of Marconi in receiving signals in code, transmitted from Poldhu, near Cornwall, England, is directly responsible for the great, world-wide services of radio today."

Marconi had the good fortune of living to see his early experiments develop.

"Next year, visitors to the New York World's Fair 1939 will be able to see more completely than ever before the many radio devices and services which have been produced for mankind as the result of Marconi's work."

JOKE ON PURSE-SNATCHER

CLEVELAND, O., (UP)—Mrs. J. I. Wilson lost her purse to a young man in fashionable suburban Cleveland Heights, but the joke was on him. The purse happened to contain only 11 cents.

It is illegal to buy or sell "poached eggs" in England, where "poached eggs" is a term meaning "stolen property of the post office."

When You Have Cold Troubles Do What 3 out of 5 Mothers Do

Here are 4 Proved Ways

They Use to Relieve Discomforts of Colds

1 Head-Cold Sniffles and Nisery. Melt a spoonful of Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water, then inhale the steaming vapors. These medicated vapors loosen phlegm, clear air-passages, make breathing easier. Then, at bedtime, massage throat and chest with VapoRub; leave bed-covering loose around neck so the medicated vapors, released by body heat, can be inhaled freely during the night. VapoRub's direct action brings comfort—relieves local congestion—helps you relax into restful sleep. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

2 Coughing or Sore Throat due to the cold. Use steam treatment outlined above. Also put a small lump of VapoRub on the tongue. It melts, trickles slowly down—bathes the throat with soothing medication which brings comforting relief to the irritated membranes and checks tendency to cough.

3 Night Coughs due to colds—especially of children—can often be prevented by massaging VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime.

4 Chest Colds. Thoroughly massage VapoRub on throat, chest and back. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth. VapoRub goes right to work—two ways at once: (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct on the irritated air-passages as its medicated vapors are inhaled with every breath. This direct double action loosens phlegm—eases coughing—clears the air-passages—eases muscular soreness or tightness—relieves local congestion.

Children's Colds are always a problem to mothers. Neglect is dangerous, because it often paves the way for more serious trouble. But constant internal dosing is risky, too. It often upsets a delicate little stomach, lowers resistance just when it is most needed to overcome the cold and ward off complications. . . . It is for these reasons that most mothers depend on VapoRub to relieve the misery of their children's colds. With VapoRub there's no needless dosing, no risk of stomach upsets. It can be used freely, as often as needed, on even the youngest child.

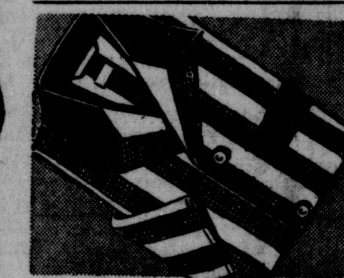

Many Other Ways in which VapoRub can help you are described in the medically-approved directions folder that comes in each VapoRub package.

ESCAPE TO HOLLYWOOD by KATHRYN CULVER

Linda Bailey's father has been considered Centerville's wealthiest citizen, but he dies and leaves her impoverished. To hide this, she sets out for Hollywood, over the protests of Fred Lancaster, who expected to marry her. En route she meets Martin Carstairs, movie star. In Los Angeles she takes an apartment with Mae Baxter, another screen aspirant. She begins to fall in love with Martin, but breaks with him when she hears he is secretly married to Judith Grange, actress, but always becomes infatuated with newcomers. Fred Lancaster comes to visit Linda and she and Mae stage a high-bat act to make Fred think her a movie success. Linda finds Fred boring. By chance they meet Martin and Linda fights back her love for him. Judith appears and tells Fred about Linda's job in a five-and-ten store. Fred leaves for home with Helen Debler, home-town rival of Linda's, and Linda is glad to see him go. Then, one night, Martin calls on Linda.

CHAPTER XXVII

LINDA did not want to go down to see Martin when he announced himself over the speaking tube. Mae, however, would not hear of her refusal. "You can't dodge things, honey. That never proves anything. Slap his face if that will make you feel any better. But, go down there and face him."

Linda went downstairs with a spot of red burning in each cheek. Martin was standing just inside the shabby reception room. His cheeks looked thinner and his eyes held a haunted look.

He said: "So . . . you didn't go back to Centerville with your cavalier from the corn belt?"

Linda shook her head and moved past him to a chair where she sat stiffly upright. "What gave you the impression I might go back with him?"

Martin shrugged his shoulders. "It was quite evident the lad is in love with you."

"Are you sure you're a competent judge?"

Martin took a deep drag on a cigarette he had lighted, and sat down restlessly.

"Look, Linda. Isn't there some way we can get together? What have I done to offend you? I have a hunch you need help rather badly. I learned today you're clerking in a five-and-ten."

"Spying on me!" Linda's eyes flashed.

MARTIN nodded. "Call it that if you wish. I employed a private detective to find out exactly what you are doing."

Linda sank back with her hands clenched in her lap. "Why shouldn't I clerk in the five-and-ten if I wish? I'm not ashamed of it."

the first moment I saw you. You had such courage and strength and beauty. His words came to Linda faintly. It seemed to her he was rehearsing the lines of some play. The thought came to her that it wasn't real . . . that nothing about Martin was real.

"I wanted to help you, darling. I wanted to lift you up to a seat beside me, to let the whole world know what a lucky fellow I was. You wouldn't let me. You turned your back on me. Why?"

LINDA did not answer him. She was afraid she would break into hysterical laughter. It was all such a farce!

"I thought perhaps it was because you loved a man back home. I made myself think that, because it was the only way I could understand it. When you refused the screen test, I thought you didn't want a movie career . . . that you planned to return and marry your sweetheart back home."

"When I met you at the studio with your Fred Lancaster and you were pretending so mightily to him you were a success, I felt sure I understood why. And I helped you, Linda, while jealousy was tearing me to pieces. But, you didn't go back with him. You stayed here . . . to slave in a five-and-ten-cent store without letting him know. Don't you think it's time you came out from behind your barrier and told me the truth?"

"Truth? What would you know about the truth?" Linda jerked her hands away from him and stood up. "I mean nothing. It was just, she charged. 'Nothing at all. Your pride is hurt because I have not gotten down on my knees and worshiped you. You're used to girls who do that. You've had an idea you're irresistible!'"

"That isn't so, Linda. Martin was standing up, his face white. 'Silly woman! You run after me but I've always known it was just the glamour of the screen and not I. You were different. I knew you were. But there's something bottled up inside you, Linda. There's a bitterness that doesn't belong to the real you.'"

HE was breathing heavily, and he blocked her when she tried to move past him out of the room. "Look into my face, Linda. I'm not going to let you escape from me again without answering one question. And you're going to look into my eyes while you answer it."

Linda tried to twist away from him. She couldn't. Her strength had deserted her. She looked up into his face and remembered the night he had kissed her so terribly long ago. She swayed forward against him, looking up into his eyes, her lips parted.

"You love me, Linda. It was a statement rather than a question. Spoken with flat finality."

She lowered her eyes. "Yes," she whispered.

His hands let go of her shoulders, his arms slid about her. "I knew it. Linda. We're fools to fight against love. We shan't fight against it any longer."

His head bent toward her. Linda closed her eyes.

Everything she was, everything she had been, and everything she hoped to be faded into nothingness as she gave herself to the sweet kiss of Martin's lips.

Then, a single word cracked like a whip behind them.

"Break!"
